KIND-HEARTED BEN.

How the Massachusetts Statesman Won the Heart of Beauregard.

An Interesting War Reminiscence—Mrs. Beauregard's Death During the Absence of Her Husband—The Unconditional Pass—Butler Not so Solid in the South as His Friends Think.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Gen. P. G. T. Beauregard, who is stopping at the Park Avenue Hotel, was asked by a POST-DISPATCH reporter yesterday how the candidacy of General Butler would be received in the South.

"I am not prepared to speak for the South," said the General, "but I think it would meet with strong opposition in that quarter, although he may not be guilty of all the charges brought against him while in command there. His subordinates may be responsible for many of the acts complained of."

"How did he treat your family and friends?" was the next question.

"With proper consideration, as I was more particularly informed on my return to New Orleans. I left home suddenly, February 23, 1861, having resigned from the United States Corps of Engineers on the call of the Provisional Government of the Confederacy, at Montgomery, Ala. I expected at that time to return in about a fortnight to take command in Louisiana, where I had been stationed for many years. Instead, I was ordered to Charleston, thence to Manassas, thence to West Tennessee, etc., to the end of the war, remaining ABSENT FROM HOME FOUR YEARS and three months. When I started from New Orleans Mrs. Beauregard was in very bad health, and I was compelled to leave her with her own family to be taken care of, hence I was anxious to return to be with her. But in war a soldier belongs first to his country and then to his family. Shortly after New Orleans was taken by the Federals my wife and family, composed only of ladies—the gentlemen having gone to the war—received an order from Gen. Butler's chief quartermaster to vacate their house in forty-eight hours, as it was to be occupied by Federal officers. An old friend of the family, Dr. Mercer, who was well acquainted with General Butler, went to him to remonstrate against such a proceeding and to explain the condition of Mrs. Beauregard's health. Gen. Butler at once countermanded the order, which, he said, had been given without his approval. Moreover, he sent a guard to protect the house from further intrusion, but the ladies requested the guard to be withdrawn, which was done. The war progressed with variable results, while MRS. BEAUREGARD'S HEALTH BECAME WORSE. At last, in the early spring of 1864 it became evident to her physician and her family that she had not long to live. Our good old friend Dr. Mercer again went to Gen. Butler to know if there was any possibility of my seeing once more the tender and loving wife from whom I had been so suddenly and long separated. He immediately turned to his desk, and with his characteristic promptness wrote an unconditional pass, which authorized me to enter his lines and to come to New Orleans, where I could remain unmolested as long as circumstances required my presence there. That was a noble act for which I shall ever be grateful. It is doubtful, in my mind, whether many officers of the United States service would have been willing to assume such a responsibility without first referring the matter to the War Department at Washington. When I received the pass Charleston was threatened with another serious attack, and Gen. Seymour of the United States Army was about to leave Jacksonville, Fla., on an expedition across North Florida, thence to the Gulf of Mexico, and I was organizing a force to check his march, which was done shortly after by Gen. Finnigan and Col. Guilt, at the battle of Olustee or Ocean Pond. I was thus PLACED IN THE PAINFUL DILEMMA of selecting between my duty as a commander and my affection as a husband. I declined the pass so generously tendered. Two weeks after, while with my troops in front of Jacksonville, in which General Seymour had retreated after his defeat, I received and read by the dismal light of a camp fire the news of the death of one whom I loved dearer than life. We had been married less than one year when we parted, and I never saw her again."

THE FIRST BLOOD.

Western Journalism in New York City Becoming a Power.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—The proclamation of the Times reducing its price from four to two cents is the sensation of the hour in journalistic circles. The WORLD regards the new departure as a decided tribute to its own success and foresight. The tripling of the WORLD's circulation has cut all the papers here, and the Times fearing the worst, has taken the initiative in imitating Mr. Crockett's coon. There is tribulation in the Tribune office. The people in command there attribute the drop of the Times to its failure to hold its own as an aggressive independent Republican newspaper, but are fain to follow the example of the Times, and this morning make the following announcement: "The Tribune will hereafter be sold at three cents a copy. The reduction is made on the theory that our readers are our partners and entitled to share in such good fortune as the reduced price of paper. If we were striving to stimulate a failing circulation we should doubtless make a more startling reduction. As it is, our general prosperity counsels us to maintain the policy, so long approved, of expending liberally upon our columns (to keep them worthy of the largest circulation among the best people), and of charging a price sure to be consistent with such an expenditure."

The Times has of late been very bitter in its attacks upon Republican leaders and the party management generally, and it is claimed that it has lost its hold upon the party.

The Sun, which will be crippled as to its Republican readers, is very much disturbed.

The Times has been spending a great deal of money of late for special dispatches, and it is doubtful whether it can keep this up as a cheap paper. After it has increased its circulation it will probably go up to three cents and remain there permanently. It is universally conceded in journalistic circles that the phenomenal success of the WORLD has caused the change of front on the part of both the Times and Tribune. It is what may be called the first knock-down and the first blood for Western journalism in New York city.

MRS. MATTHIAS' FUNERAL.

The Attendance Large—Dr. Beardsley Vindicated.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—The funeral of Mrs. William F. Matthias, whose husband charges Dr. Beardsley, the attending physician, with having murdered his wife, took place yesterday. A large crowd was present curious to observe the actions of Mr. Matthias, who is said to have been almost insane since his wife's death. He showed no outward signs of his former frenzy. To a reporter Mr. Matthias said, in reference to his charges against Dr. Beardsley and subsequent assault upon the latter in his saloon:

"MY LIFE HAD BEEN VERY HAPPY during the past ten years, and it is a wonder that I have survived the shock of my wife's death. Is it any wonder that I for a moment lost my senses? Dr. Olcott was regularly in attendance upon my wife and called on the day of her death shortly after noon. He said she was out of danger. But early in the evening she became worse, and I sent for Dr. Beardsley. When he arrived my wife was lying in bed and complaining of a pain in her chest. Dr. Beardsley took a position on one side of the bed, and I on the other. He gave her some medicine and a moment after SHE FELL BACK DEAD. I do not recollect anything after that. I do not remember having assaulted Dr. Beardsley. He has attended my family before, and has given satisfaction."

The post mortem examination was made yesterday by Dr. Creamer, and showed that Mrs. Matthias died of a congestive chill, caused by malaria. The result of the examination vindicates Dr. Beardsley, and the charges against him will not be pressed either by Mr. Matthias or his friends, who endeavored to have the autopsy prevented.

SEIZED ON THE WHARF.

A Wealthy San Francisco Banker Does a Poor Job of Smuggling.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Among the cabin passengers of the steamship Servia, which arrived from Liverpool Monday, was Mr. Joseph A. Donohoe of San Francisco, said to be a wealthy banker, who has been in Europe with his wife during the past six months. Their baggage consisted of twenty-seven large trunks. Mr. Donahoe, on landing, made the usual sworn declaration that his baggage contained only "wearing apparel in actual use, and personal effects; not merchandise." The inspector at the wharf, not understanding how a family of two should be obliged to travel with so many trunks, questioned Mr. Donohoe closely.

"Does your baggage contain nothing dutiable?"

"Nothing."

"Are you sure?"

"Perfectly; except that I bring some pictures, cheap imitations of masterpieces in the European galleries."

Fourteen trunks opened on the wharf contained many new garments, but Mr. Donohoe was given the benefit of all the doubts and the trunks were returned to him. The remaining thirteen were sent to the seizure room, where they were found to contain many beautiful new dresses, valued at $2,000; India shawls, lace, priestly vestments, silver ware for domestic and church use, silk hosiery and a great variety of rich goods valued at $9,000. From another passenger on the Servia were seized six trunks containing dutiable goods valued at $1,000.

REDUCING THE FIGURES.

A Male Foreman Slanders a Female Shop Girl.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Miss Mary Klein is a handsome brunette of some 16 years and is employed in a silk factory in Broome, near Mott street. Mary has dark, silky hair, eyes of a violet hue and a figure whose rounded and luscious lines would tempt even St. Augustine himself. She is decidedly plump in her proportions, inclining even to embonpoint. There are from 150 to 200 hands employed in the factory, most of whom are young GIRLS OF UNDOUBTED RESPECTABILITY. In August last Mary in some way seemingly incurred the hostility of John Wagner, a foreman in the factory where she was employed, and, as she alleges, Wagner, in giving vent to his spite, insinuated that the charming Mary was blessed with too adequate an amount of adipose tissue. Miss Klein considered this a serious reflection upon her character, and without delay brought suit against the man who had charged her with getting fat in a secretive and unaccountable manner, laying her damages in the sum of $2,000. Mr. Wagner FAILED TO PUT IN AN ANSWER. When the suit was called, the case was sent to a Sheriff's jury to have the damages duly appraised. Yesterday Sheriff Davidson and a jury tried the case. Miss Klein swore to the use of the words as stated, and that she felt very hurt over them. Miss Barrie Klein, her sister, testified that Wagner spoke the words to her, and that several talked of them afterward. The jury punished Wagner with a verdict against him for $100.

General consternation prevailed all over the country. We have two correspondents in the field and will keep you advised of the movements of the Indians.

LOOKING FOR A LAD.

Adam Nesbitt, the Young Millionaire, Still Missing.

A Thorough Search for Him Being Prosecuted—The Clew Furnished by a New York Lady—A Strange Note.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Mr. J. Bennett Smith, of Kingston, Pa., who is prosecuting a search in this city for young Adam Nesbitt, the young millionaire who disappeared from his home on August 31, received a letter yesterday from a lady, who said she had on Saturday last seen two boys in a University Place car, one of whom answered young Nesbitt's description.

"On Saturday afternoon last, about 5 o'clock," said the lady to Mr. Smith when he called on her, "I noticed two boys in the car with me. I watched them very attentively, and concluded they were strangers. They seemed to be discussing some project. Finally they settled themselves in a corner, and one of them went to sleep ON HIS COMPANION'S SHOULDER. The other then took from his pocket what I thought was a Lakeside novel and attempted to read, but also soon fell asleep. He was of dark complexion, clear skin, dark-gray eyes, dark hair, full face, and rather a full chin. A mustache, just sprouting, was visible." When shown young Nesbitt's picture she was quite positive that it was a likeness of this boy taken three or four years ago. She describes the other boy as of light complexion and light hair, and his skin rough and full of pimples. He wore a straw hat and a pepper and salt suit. Both boys were about the same age. While the dark haired one was quite stout, the other was of slight build. Mr. Smith said last evening that this lady's statement caused him to be quite positive that the boys ARE STILL IN THE CITY. Her description is exactly that given of the two who registered at the Western Union Hotel on August 31, as W. Pennleg and Wm. Thomas of Philadelphia. The same is also an exact description of the boys who called at the Cromwell Line office and asked the price of tickets to New Orleans. His impression that young Nesbitt is still in the city was further strengthed on receiving the following brief note last evening:

"SEPTEMBER 18, 1883.

"MR. SMITH—You can never find me, so it is no use trying. Good bye forever.

"A. N."

This was postmarked New York, September 18, 4 p. m., and the note was mailed at the general post office. It was addressed to Mr. J. B. Smith, Metropolitan Hotel, No. 582 Broadway, City. The "J. B." appeared at the top of the "Mr." as if the boy had forgotten at first to write the initial letters. Mr. Smith and Mr. Alfred Dart of Kingston, who are now in the city, say that the handwriting is undoubtedly that of the missing boy.

SLUGGER SULLIVAN'S TOUR.

The Champion Coming to St. Louis in October—He Will Play Ball Here.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—John L. Sullivan, the Boston strong boy, was at the Gilsey House yesterday morning and left with "Maori" Slade by the 2 o'clock train for Boston. A reporter of the POST-DISPATCH saw the champion knock-out at the hotel. "You have heard that Slade is coming with us?" he said. "Al Smith agrees to pay him $1,000 a month and expenses for the tour, which will last four months. I'm taking Slade with me to Boston this afternoon, where I shall make my final preparations to have my brother run my saloon during my absence, and then we'll be ready for the road."

"WHO WILL MAKE UP THE COMBINATION?"

"Beside Slade and myself there will be Steve Taylor, Pete McCoy, Mike Gillespie and a fourth man not yet decided upon, making sixn in all of the BEST SPARRERS IN THE COUNTRY. We will have no club swinging, wrestling, or anything pertaining to a variety show. It is intended to give a purely scientific exhibition of the manly art without any slugging. We expect to cater to the best people and shall introduce four round contests with gloves. We open at Baltimore on the 28th of the present month. From Baltimore we go to Chicago and St. Louis, where I am to play a game of base ball; thence by way of the Central Pacific railroad to Oregon, Nevada, California and Montana, returning east over the newly opened Northern Pacific. Wherever we stop I shall offer cups and medals for local talent, and will be ready to meet any man who may desire TO TRY TO KNOCK ME OUT in four rounds. I expect to meet Jem Mace in San Francisco and have a bout with him. The people here have been very indulgent with me. I have taken $50,000 out of three exhibitions and I do not like to impose upon their good-nature."

"But, Mr. Sullivan, outside of these exhibitions, have you no arrangements for meeting a man in a regular set-to?"

"There was a peculiar twinkle in the champion's eye as he replied: "I wouldn't do anything to violate the law, you know; but next fall I expect to meet Paddy Ryan in Boston. THERE WILL BE NO LIMIT to the number of rounds, and I am not at present prepared to state what will be the nature of the gloves we shall use."

"Will you extend your tour to Europe?"

"Very likely. If it proves as successful as we expect we will visit England, Germany, France and perhaps Australia."

HESTER'S HUSBAND.

As Soon as He Became a Father He Deserted Her—A Real Rascal.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Wm. Jacobs and Hester Wilson, Hebrews, were married at the City Hall, by Alderman Jacobus, on November 22, 1879, the bridegroom calling himself William Wilson. His wife knew that his name was Jacobs. They went to live at No. 50 Christie street. About two years ago a female child was born. Almost simultaneously Wilson left his wife and went to Boston. She went back to her mother, and partly supported herself as a waitress at the Bowery, a concert saloon of ill repute. She also earned a little money by tailoring. She corresponded with her husband MORE OR LESS REGULARLY, directing her letters to No. 49 Vienna Place and No. 2 Davis street, Boston. He sent her no money. On Monday afternoon she received an envelope postmarked Boston and directed in her husband's writing, in which were a large, cheap gilt-edged card and two small cards. On the larger card was printed the following: "Mr. and Mrs. F. Smith request the pleasure of your company at the marriage of their daughter, Tuesday, September 18, 1883, 3 p. m., at New Era Hall, Tremont street, Boston." One of the smaller cards bore the name, Emma Smith, the other the name, William Jacobs. She says she wrote back, URGING HIM NOT TO MARRY 'til he had got a divorce from her. The letter was posted in time to go on the night train to Boston and to reach there yesterday, and they advised her to forbid the banns by telegraph. She accordingly sent the following telegram from the Occidental Hotel:

"To the janitor of Era Hall, Tremont street, Boston: Notify the clergyman who is to marry Emma Smith that Jacobs is a married man. From his wife,

"HESTER WILSON."

She confessed that she was not entirely taken by suprise at getting her husband's wedding cards. In a letter dated August 9 he had announced his intention of remarrying, and had accused her of unfaithfulness. SHE DENIES THE CHARGE. Late yesterday she received a dispatch from the janitor of New Era Hall saying that he knew of no Emma Smith who was to be married at 3 o'clock and that there was to be no wedding there at that hour. A dispatch from Boston says that no wedding at all took place in the hall yesterday.

MME. MINNIE HAUCK.

Her Repertoire and Company—A Trip Through the Southern States.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—"Five minutes later, and you would not have seen me," said Mme. Minnie Hauck, with a smile, to the POST-DISPATCH correspondent, who called upon her at the Everett House last evening, for I am fatigued after the voyage, and had promised myself a trip into the land of nod. "I have been taking a holiday for the past three months. By the way, did you hear of my experience in Paris? I was to sing in 'Lohengrin' at the new Italian Opera House, and was ready to go on the stage almost, when I learned that THE MANAGERS HAD NO RIGHT to produce 'Lohengrin,' since a German company had secured that privilege. Of course I broke off all negotiations at once. I saw Massenet while in Europe, and have made arrangements to create the title role in his new opera, 'Ninon De L'Enclos,' when I go back."

"How long shall you remain in America?"

"Until February. I shall sing in the oratorio of 'Samson' at the Worcester Musical Festival, next week. Then I shall start on a concert tour through the Southern States. I expect much pleasure from visiting New Orleans, where I began my career. I shall sing there for the BENEFIT OF THE SOLDIERS' ORPHANS."

"What artists accompany you?"

"Among the more distinguished is Signor De Pasqualis, the Italian tenor of La Scala, Milan, whom Mapleson tried to secure. Probably he will sing in Mapleson's company after my season is over. Signor Montegriffo, Mr. Sternberg, the pianist, and Mlle. Sali, contralto, are also with me. When I go back I shall sing in Berlin and London. At the latter place I shall appear in Mackenzie's 'Colomba,' the libretto of which is by Merrime, the author of 'Carmen.' I am in excellent health and high spirits."

After Thirty-Three Years.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 19.—Frederick Gilson, a London tradesman in good circumstances, left his home thirty-three years ago, accompanied by his twelve-year-old son, telling his wife he would take the boy to school. She never heard from her husband again. Two months ago a young man went to work at Mansell's book bindery in London who had been employed in Appleton's bindery, in Brooklyn, and there he met her son, Frederick Gilson. She at once communicated with him and received a letter from him inclosing funds for her expenses to this country. She sailed on the Egypt of the National line, which arrived yesterday, and mother and son were united after a separation of thirty-three years. Mr. Gilson was as much surprised as delighted on hearing from his mother, for his father, who died a few years ago, told him that she had died in 1854.

GREELY'S CHANCES.

Nothing Can Possibly be Done for Him This Fall.

Lieut. Dannenhower Thinks an Attempt to Reach Them Utterly Impossible—What Greely's Orders Were—An Incident in the Tardy Commander's Life.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, September 19.—Lieutenant Dannenhower thinks, with nearly all who have studied the Arctic question, that there is little hope of rescuing Greely and his men this fall. "It looks hard, I know," he said to your correspondent in speaking of the subject, "to say that this great nation of 50,000,000 people, for whom Greely and his party made the trip, and in whose behalf they have put themselves in this dangerous position, should sit idly at home while these men are suffering, and perhaps starving, and coolly say that nothing can be done for them. But those who have had Arctic experience know that to reach them by any means is almost impossible. There may be one chance in a thousand, but no more than that. Few people, you see, understand, or at least realize the great difficulties to be overcome in Arctic traveling in the winter. THE ARCTIC NIGHT, it must be remembered, sets in in October, and for many months there is no light except an hour or two of twilight at noon. Then the storms are very frequent and very severe, and when they rage the darkness is thick, so that traveling is impossible. Even under favorable circumstances only a few miles can be made in a day, and when you consider that on many days you could not move a foot, and that the distance to be travelled is from 400 to 700 miles over what is considered an almost impassable country at favorable times, you see the apparent hopelessness of the task. Greely's orders were to make Littleton Island, if not relieved by September 1, so he is probably on his way there now. He may by this time have received the information left at Cape Sabine of the failure of the expedition and know the worst. There are two courses left to him, one to make a dash for the Danish settlements on the coast of Greenland, which are three or four hundred miles away from Littleton Island, the other to retreat to his station. The Signal Service people now say that HE HAD SUFFICIENT PROVISIONS to last him, with care, to the summer of '84. He is a careful and efficient officer, and would doubtless have left things in order at the station, and with what provisions he would pick up at the caches on his way back he would probably get through the winter. Of course the prospect will not be very pleasing to them, and the thought of another long, cold winter there, especially with a limited supply of provisions, will be very painful, but there seems little hope of any alternative."

"Then you think there is no use of even an effort to reach them?"

"No, I do not think that. On the contrary I think there is only one chance in a thousand that the ice conditions in Melville Bay may be such that a vessel could get through, and that this chance ought to be taken advantage of. If a vessel were AT ONCE FITTED UP and manned with hardy men from the New England coast it could make a reconnoisance and if should find the ice conditions favorable might reach that region. Of course the chances are few and the risk would be considerable, but Greely and his men have done their duty by us and we should do everything that is possible for them, even though the chances are largely against us."

"Would it not be possible, Lieutenant, to send out parties of experienced men, with dogs and sledges from Upernavik to reach them?"

"Probably not. The natives there are very superstitious, and to get them to go north at this time of the year is, it is said, absolutely impossible. Then, too, it would be useless, for I do not think a party could carry sufficient provisions for its own sustenance on such a long trip as that, to say nothing of relieving the others. It appears to be a physical impossibility. Yet I should be in favor of everything that could be done being undertaken immediately, and the one chance in a thousand of which I spoke undertaken."

An interesting incident in the life of Greely is told here. He had always, from his boyhood, desired to make a personal study of Arctic affairs, and exacted a promise of his wife before their marriage that she should permit him, without objection, to make such a trip if he ever had an opportunity. His wife now resides in California.

Y., September 19.—The weather is beautiful and the large morning influx of delegates and visitors have filled the hotels to overflowing and given the village a very lively appearance. Caucusing with reference to the new State Committee has been very active during the morning and most of the Congressional delegations have held preliminary meetings. The Albany delegation elected Andrew S. Draper State Committeeman. John N. Smith and five of his friends in the delegation declined to attend the meeting. The Twenty-sixth Congressional District elected Senator Holmes of Madison, State Committeeman, by one majority, over Thos. C. Platt of Tioga.

The Convention was called to order at 12:05. Carroll Smith of Syracuse was elected Committeeman for the Twenty-fifth District. The names of Senator A. M. Holmes and Jas. Smart are both mentioned in connection with the Chairmanship of the State Committee.

The place of meeting is in a temporary frame structure called the "wigwam," in the spacious and pretty grounds of the Spring Hotel. It was erected at the cost of the villagers.

E. G. Lapham was unanimously chosen temporary chairman. He was received with applause and addressed the convention.

Upon taking the chair, Mr. Lapham said: "We have met at a moment of great interest in the history of Republicanism, and if we are faithful to our trust we shall organize a victory here to-day. Politically, last year was our Bull Run, [laughter] but if we are faithful, this year we will prove our Gettysburg and Appomatox. [Applause]. What Charles S. Benton once characterized as the 'Tumultuary Democracy' of the Mississippi Valley is now the seat of our Republican stronghold, and 'tumultuary Democracy' are found in the State of New York. How could it be otherwise with distinct and rival parties in our great city, each refusing to surrender its organization and each determined to send a full delegation at the convention at Buffalo? The result is that the idol of a year ago has been cast down and is almost literally trodden under foot in his own home." [Laughter]. He referred to some length to national affairs and closed by stating that by wise action the success of the Republican party could be complete.

After the appointment of the usual committees and the ransaction of routine business the convention took recess until 3 o'clock.

Massachusetts Republicans.

BOSTON, September 19.—The Republican State Convention was called to order at 11 o'clock and Chairman Lodge of the State Central Committee chosen temporary chairman. After prayer by the Rev. Orvin P. Grifford, he addressed the convention. At the conclusion of Mr. Lodge's address the usual committees and permanent officers were appointed. Chas. R. Codman was chosen president, and on taking the chair addressed the convention at considerable length, his remarks being chiefly in reference to the present Governor. He reviewed the Tewksbury affair and said: "The one man who has led this crusade for fame is a Massachusetts man, conspicuous always, of great audacity, of ready wit, of voluble and copious speech, and of

A RESTLESS PERSONAL AMBITION.

He is a man of national notoriety, surely, if not of national reputation, who has often solicited and sometimes obtained the votes of the people, but who has never been able to retain them long. This legislator was identified with the Congressional raids upon the Treasury. He was the politician who had proposed to the people of the United States to repudiate their honest debts, and so to make their great and solvent country a by-word among the nations of the earth; a Major-General were as Provost-Marshal and never as leader of men, and whose successes were those of sutler and not of strategist."

WHOSE MOST VALUABLE SERVICES

His references to Butler's political and military record and "national notoriety" were loudly applauded by the delegates. Three cheers were given when he concluded. After the transaction of some routine business the convention took a recess until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON BULLETIN.

Robinson was nominated for Governor on the first ballot, having 996 votes out of 1,168.

Democrats of Maryland.

BALTIMORE, September 19.—The Democratic State Convention met at noon to-day. Ex-Gov. Phillip Francis Thomas was chosen temporary chairman. Mr. Thomas addressed the Convention counseling forbearance, wisdom and a sole regard for public interests in its deliberations. The Committee on Credentials, Permanent Organization and Resolutions were appointed, and the Convention took a recess for half an hour.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, September 19.—For the South Atlantic States, light rain, partly cloudy weather, northeast to southeast winds, generally higher barometer, stationary or slight fall in temperature. In Coast and Gulf States, generally fair weather, variable winds, generally from northeast to southeast, stationary or slight rise in temperature. For the Tennessee and the Ohio Valley, slightly warmer, fair weather, easterly to southerly winds, lower barometer in Ohio Valley. For the Lower Lake Region, slightly warmer, fair weather, east to south winds, lower barometer. For the Upper Lake Region, slightly warmer, fair weather, winds generally from east to south, lower barometer. For the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, increasing cloudiness and local rains, southeast to southwest winds, becoming variable, lower barometer, stationary or slight rise in temperature. The rivers will remain about stationary.

The Coming Louisville Races.

LOUISVILLE, KY., September 19.—Next week at the Exposition is the jockey club races over that popular course, beginning on the 24th and continuing twenty-one days. The Lorillard champion stallion stakes will be run for on the 29th. The stake is valued at over $20,000. The Governors of Virginia, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Tennessee have been invited to be present, and several have signified their acceptance. Tom Hughes, author of "Tom Brown's School Days," who is now at Rugby Colony, Tenn., has been invited to be a guest of the Exposition management for the week.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., September 19.—A construction train on the West Shore railroad, going east, at 7 o'clock this morning struck a hand car four miles east of this city. Fifteen platform cars with 150 workmen on board, were piled up in a mass. The killed are Peter Smith, Syracuse; an Italian, No. 86, name unknown, and John [illegible], of Waterbury. The injured are [illegible] dome, Guiseppe Morella, Antonio Nardo, Felix Destito, Angelo Defno, Guige Lamarzo, Antonio Coppuccio, John Dillon, Edward Ward, John Longstreet. The injured are Guiseppe Guidice and James Scaly. One or two others are not expected to live. The accident was caused by a handcar not stopping in time.

SMITH'S PREDICTION.

The United States Must Sooner or Later be Divided—An Insult.

CHICAGO, September 19.—A special from Victoria B. C.; says: "The newspaper section of the Villard party arrived here on the steamer North Pacific. On their arrival the principal resident members of the Provincial Government of British Columbia were invited to lunch on board the vessel, including Hon. Wm. Smith, Prime Minister; Hon. John Roberson, provincial secretary, and Minister of Finance Mr. Redfern, the Mayor of Victoria, and Mr. Francis, the American consul. In responding to the toast, "The Queen," his host felt that Premier Smith transcended the bounds of international politeness and abused their hospitality. He said: "The annexation of any part of British Columbia to the United States is impossible, but that time and certainly cause the annexation of a part of the Pacific Coast section of the United States to British Columbia. The vast deposits of coal, exhaustless timber, unparalleled harbors, illimitable wheat fields, and the new type of men and women and unapproachable physique of the latter, was pointed to in as the place where the star of empire would reach its zenith. Through British Columbia the pathway of the Asiatic trade was 1,000 miles shorter than by way of San Francisco, which had about reached his limit, and Portland could not carry across the bars of the Columbia River Asia's magnificent commerce." Continuing, he said: "It is a matter of deep conviction with me, and of many others who have attentively considered the drift of affairs in the United States, that that country cannot continue undivided. Its population have too varied interests, its different sections are too diverse. The day will come when it must go to pieces, and when that day comes British Columbia will be glad to take into her arms that fragment of it which is her natural neighbor."

WILL REVERSE THE ORDER

MR. HILL RESIGNS.

The Long Looked-For Document Sent in This Morning.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, September 19.—Supervising Architect Hill has sent in his resignation to the Secretary of the Treasury. He makes no remarks in his letter other than merely to tender his resignation. He has, however, contemplated this for some time past, as he is tired, he says, of being the target of every fool in the country who thinks he knows anything about buildings or building material.

NO RELIEF FOR GREELY.

The Final Decision of the Secretaries of the War and Navy Departments.

WASHINGTON, September 19.—The Secretary of the Navy decided that there is no law under which he can render the desired assistance to the poor people on the naval reservation at Pensacola.

The final decision of the Secretaries of War and Navy is that it is not practicable to send another expedition to the relief of Greely this year.

Locomotive Firemen's Brotherhood.

DENVER, September 19.—The tenth annual convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen of the United States and Canada is in session here. President Arnold of Columbus, Ohio, presided at the opening exercises. Speeches were made by Col. Maynard, editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, Congressman Belford, ex-Gov. Routt, S. M. Stephens and others. Henry Ward Beecher, who is delivering a series of lectures here, spoke ten minutes. About 180 delegates are present, representing the same number of lodges and a membership of 8,000.

A Postmaster Snubbed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 19.—Ex-Postmaster Conley of Atlanta had an interview with the Postmaster-General to-day in regard to his removal. He defended himself from the charges contained in the inspector's report, on which he was removed, and requested that he be re-instated. Postmaster General Gresham, after hearing his statement, informed Conley that his case was closed, and it would not be reconsidered by the department.

A Lucky Capture.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., September 19.—The colored man giving his name as Clarence Smith, arrested at Hawleyville last Sunday for burglary, and taken to the Danbury jail Wednesday, has been identified as Sam Pine, the negro who is supposed to have committed the outrage on Miss Slocum, of North Salem, N. Y., in June last. Pine was taken to Ridgefield yesterday, where he was positively identified by Miss Slocum.

Ex-Prisoners of War.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, September 11.—The National Association of Ex-Prisoners of War began their tenth annual session today. Among those present are B. F. Blankester of Hartford, Conn., president; C. C. Shanklin, of Cleveland, vice-president; Hiram Buckingham of Hartford, secretary, and delegates representing a half-dozen State associations.

Closed by the Sheriff.

CHICAGO, September 19.—A Madison, Wis. special says: "The Sheriff yesterday took possession of the dry goods and clothing store of M. S. Rawley. The liabilities are about $50,000, chiefly due to Chicago and Milwaukee firms. There are $22,000 in judgment notes out, and it is not believed the convertible assets will satisfy them.

The Wheelmen's Parade.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., September 19.—The parade of the wheelmen this morning was a successful and brilliant affair. It is estimated that the procession was viewed by 50,000 people. The procession was about a mile long, about six hundred men being in line.

St. Louisans in Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 19.—Mrs. Dr. J. B. Johnson, of St. Louis, and three daughters, registered at Williard's House this morning.

Murder in Virginia.

NORFOLK, VA., September 19.—Jno. Jarvis shot Clodius Bonney in Princess Anne County yesterday with a shotgun, killing him instantly. The murderer escaped to a neighboring swamp.

A Distinguished Man Dead.

HARTFORD, CONN., September 19.—Hon. Wm. Faxon, Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Gideon Wells, died suddenly this morning of heart disease, aged 62.

Dismissed.

Miss Dora Ronalds, of 1008 Pine street, was arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day on a charge of stealing $40 from John O'Neal. The testimony of the prosecuting witness was the only evidence offered [illegible]

O'DONNELL'S DEFENSE.

To Protect His Own Life He Killed Carey.

An Effort Being Made to Secure Counsel for Him—Earl Granville and Wife Gone to France—Sailors Sent to Tonquin—Other Foreign News.

LONDON, September 19.—The Times in tracing the antecedents of O'Donnell, finds that he is 45 years of age and a native of Meracladdy, county Donegal Ireland. He has been to America several times. He served in the American war of the rebellion. He lived for some time in Philadelphia, and kept a public house on the Canadian border. He invested his funds in silver mines and in Fenian bonds and lost his money. He returned to Ireland last May, and frequented the company of Irish-Americans in Londonderry, carried a revolver, and was considered a strong Nationalist, but was opposed to the Invincibles.

HE DENOUNCED CAREY

when the latter turned informer, and declared he would not shoot, but would burn him by inches. He started to Cape Town to seek work because he considered America played out. He had never seen Carey before taking passage, and had no idea the informer was on board the steamer Kinfauns Castle when he embarked.

The defense will probably be that Carey tried to shoot the prisoner, who wrenched the revolver away from him and used it to protect his own life. It is stated O'Donnell's brother, who is living in Ireland, will endeavor to obtain the services of A. M. Sullivan, M. P., to conduct the defense. The friends of O'Donnell ridicule the idea that he went to Cape Town for the special purpose of killing Carey.

EARL GRANVILLE.

LONDON, September 19.—Earl Granville, the British Foreign Secretary; accompanied by his wife, left Dover to-day for Calais, France.

France.

PARIS, September 19.—M. Waddington was present at yesterday's conference between Marquis Tseng, and Prime Minister Ferry.

Several journals mention Waddington as a probable successor to Challemel Lacour in the event that the latter resigns his portfolio as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

OFF FOR TONQUIN.

BREST, September 19.—Three hundred and thirty sailors left here for Toulon, whence they will embark for service in the French fleet in Tonquin waters.

British Dominion.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., September 19.—The French fishing schooner, Mercury, which arrived at St. Pierre last night from Grand Banks, picked up, on the 12th instant, the two Newfoundland fishermen, Walsh and Matthews, in the dory, having been six days adrift without food or water. They became delirious and opened their veins and sucked their blood to quench their terrible thirst. They were so helpless that they had to be hoisted aboard the vessel with a rope. The Mercury also brought Capt. Hiscock and three of the crew of the wrecked Newfoundland banker Medianna. They knew nothing of the balance of the crew.

India.

LONDON, September 19.—The Times' Calcutta special states that a published account of the French outrages at Tamatave falls far short of the truth, and adds that when the English Consul Pakenham was dying the French priests endeavored to force him to become a Catholic and compelled him to kiss the crucifix.

LET THE JURY DECIDE.

Judge Noonan's Opinion in the Test Barber Case.

This morning Judge Noonan rendered his decision on the points raised in the test case of the barbers. In giving his decision Judge Noonan said: "The case against Ignatz Scherzinger is brought under the Sabbath-breaking section. The defense is that shaving, etc., is a work of necessity. The first difficulty I had to determine was whether this was a question of law or fact for court and jury. I will leave the matter to the jury in this particular case. In the 18th Alabama, 284, I find that this is a question of fact for the jury to determine under the direction of the court. The defense and State can prepare such instructions as they see fit, and at the proper time I will pass upon them. The law of 1857 will be considered 'in' for the defense. When the court adjourned the question was on the latitude of cross-examination. The witness on the subject of necessity is liable to the same breadth of cross-examination as any other. The matter has been up before the Eastern courts and I have examined all the reports of cases in the country. In case of Commonwealth vs. Louisville and Nashville Railroad I find that is a work of necessity which the common custom of country pronounce a necessity. In another authority I find that a barber shaving a customer on Sunday is a work of necessity. When the court pass on the instructions it will be the proper time to instruct on these points. Recall the witness." The trial then proceeded.

Alleged Police Outrage.

Robert M. Adams, a broker well known on 'Change, makes charges of outrageous treatment against Policeman 215, and Sergeant Burke. He lives at Webster Grove, and was on his way to the Union Depot when he came upon the crowd at the Twelfth street fire. A policeman let him through the ropes, and he walked to within twenty feet of the other side, when No. 215 seized him roughly and said he must go back. He argued the case, and the policeman struck him again. He then walked away, and at the depot met Sergeant Burke, and asked in an excited and profane way who No. 215 was. The Sergeant responded in a like vein. A few minutes later, while standing at the depot, Burke passed him and struck him in the stomach with his elbow. Mr. Adams walked up to Burke and asked him what his object was in making the assault, and was dragged off to the Four Courts by way of explanation. On the way the Sergeant hit him three times with a club over the head, cutting his hat. No charge was placed against him, but the Sergeant in charge pronounced him drunk and sent him to the calaboose, from which he was released at the end of fifteen minutes. Mr. Adams solemnly asserts that he had not been drinking, and is determined to bring all the parties concerned in the outrage before the Police Board.

Railway Notes.

W. B. Jennings, division freight agent of the Wabash, is down from Moberly.

Col. J. W. Paramore, president of the Texas and St. Louis, has returned from a trip down the road.

Capt. J. T. Spoar, general agent of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, leaves for Cincinnati this evening.

Col. J. Hill, general manager, and E. R. Darlow, his private secretary, left for Indianapolis this morning.

[illegible] Missouri Pacific Railway at Palestine, Texas, is in the city looking up the boys.

Wm. H. Lindsay has been appointed general agent of the Louisville Air Line, vice I. H. Gregory, resigned. Mr. Lindsay was for a long time connected with the Wabash, and is well known in this city.

There will be some lively fighting for cotton traffic this year. The rates east from St. Louis are the same as last season, and from Texas and Arkansas no reduction has been made only from competing points. St. Louis will fare better this year in cotton than ever before.

McCHESNEY'S DEFI.

The Alleged Chief of the Gambling Ring to the Chief of Police.

The Police Commissioners met yesterday afternoon, and decided not to elect a Vice-President until the Governor filled the Board. Chief Campbell was called in, and the smooth explanation made to him that the order regarding Sam Boyd, Chief of Detectives, assuming charge of the lottery prosecutions, simply meant that the Board desired Mr. Boyd to assist the Chief, and that there was no intention to curtail his powers. The vacancies in the Board seem to be going begging, not a man of prominence in the city really being openly in the field. The Governor may naturally be expected to go slow with the material before him. The talk about blank resignations is still common, but inquiry at the best sources seems to warrant the statement that the system of blank resignations is peculiarly a feature of the Crittenden administration. Gov. Phelps never considered such documents necessary. If a Police Commissioner did not suit him, he simply exercised his power as Governor to remove him. Interest in a flagging sensation will be revived by the following lurid note, which Warren McChesney brought to the POST-DISPATCH office this morning:

"ST. LOUIS, September 19, 1883.

"John W. Campbell, Chief of Police:

SIR—On the 18th inst. I sent you a note asking you whether an alleged interview with you, as published in the Globe-Democrat, was correct, in which you used my name in an effort to entrap you into a circle for a questionable purpose. Up to this time you have failed to reply. It seems singularly strange to me that you, as a public officer, would not expose any effort made to have you violate your sworn duties. You also decline to give the "gentleman's" name who invited you from your office and accompanied you down the street, even after discovering his evil motives. You still remain in his company, even to dining with him at Tony Faust's.

Now, sir, my conclusions are that the story you related to the Globe-Democrat reporter was the imaginations of a drunken brain, and after doing me the injury you have done, you did not have the manhood to try and correct it, therefore I brand your statement as an unmitigated falsehood.

AN interesting feature of the session of St. Louis Lodge, No. 1, United Order of Honor, last night was the presentation to Frank R. Bigney of a handsome solid gold emblem shield of the order. The presentation was made by Capt. Harry W. Smith, President of the order in Missouri. Mr. Bigney received the elegant gift in a brief address.

A VERY pleasant evening party was given last night by Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Knapper, at their residence on Chouteau avenue. The occasion was that of the anniversary of their marriage. The evening was spent in the enjoyment of a programme consisting of music, recitation, dancing, etc., at the close of which, shortly after midnight the company dispersed.

A DIVORCE suit was instituted to-day by Mrs. Hattie M. Kinnan, against William B. Kinnan. The parties were married in this city in December 24, 1874, and lived together until December 1881, when the defendant deserted the plaintiff and he has ever since absented himself from her. FACTORS AND BUYERS.

The Coming Election of Officers of the Cotton Exchange.

J. D. Goldman will Probably be the Next President—Messrs. Hill and Gilkeson Mentioned as Possible Candidates.

The heavy weights of the Cotton Exchange were not found on the handsome floor of that little building this morning when a POST-DISPATCH reporter called around in search of them, but a sufficient number of well-known factors and buyers were on the sidewalk in front of the building listening to a vagrant negro's imitations of a steamboat whistle, to serve the news-gatherer's purpose. The purpose was to learn who were the candidates for the position of President, the election for which office comes off the third Tuesday of October, which falls on the 16th of the month. Besides the President, a Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and Board of Directors are to be elected. The positions of president and vice-president are purely honorary, the only benefit arising from the former being an extensive advertising throughout the cotton belts, the latter's benefit being nil. There is only one candidate for secretary, and that is the present incumbent, Mr. Simmons.

Mr. Senter was the first man button-holed, and he yielded up the following: "I am not a candidate for the position. The only man who has announced himself as far as I know is Mr. J. D. Goldman, of the firm of Adler, Goldman & Co., cotton factors. He has a strong following, is an old member, a large cotton factor and has been vice-president. I think it likely he will be elected, as there is no one else running for the place. I have been president three times, and am now a director. I do not want the position now."

MR. SIMMONS, THE SECRETARY,

was busy with his books when the POST-DISPATCH young man disturbed him with: "Mr. Simmons, who are the candidates for president at the coming election on 'Change?"

"I don't hear much talk about it," was the answer. "Things are pretty quiet now. I couldn't say who will be the candidates. I only know one, Mr. Goldman. He is the only one I have heard express himself on the matter, and he is likely to be the strongest candidate."

"How old is Mr. Goldman?"

"He is a young man comparatively. I don't believe he is 40 years of age. I wouldn't like to say anything about the election, because I am not in a position to do so."

Mr. Andrew Mitchell said: "I have heard of a number of candidates. Mr. Gilkeson, of Gilkeson & Schloss, is one; Mr. Jerome Hill, of Hill, Fontaine & Co., is another, and Mr. Goldman, of Adler, Goldman & Co., is the third. These are the three prominent candidates. The buying element is in favor of Wm. A. Jackson. The only objection to Mr. Jackson is that he is too modest and retiring. Altogether the chances are in favor of Mr. Goldman. Mr. John Gilkeson is one of Goldman's bankers, although he is a possible president himself. It is a little too early to forecast the election now, as there is little interest in the matter, but a week or so previous to the election there will be a pretty good feeling and lots of talk. Mr. Gilkeson is a pretty popular man, but I don't think he wants it much. They regulate this thing by turns, the position generally going to the largest factor. The buyers have never elected a president yet. They generally put in a buyer as vice-president. But there is a strong sentiment in the direction of giving the presidency to the buyers this time, and the buyers, therefore, stand a good show. Mr. Goldman is a factor. As far as the vice-presidency is concerned, I think it will go to Mr. Henry S. Drukker."

MR. GABRIEL BOUVIER,

a prominent cotton man, said: "Mr. Goldman is a formidable candidate. Messrs. Gilkeson and Hill are his only opponents."

"Will they run for the position?"

"I hardly think so. They have not come out yet, and I do not believe they will. Mr. Goldman is the only man who has announced himself as a candidate, and he has been working hard for the place. He has asked me to vote for him, and I see no reason why I should not sustain him; he has been here long enough and deserves the position. To tell the truth, there is very little talk about the election. This is because the members are not all home yet. Some of the prominent members are, as I say, away, and I suppose when they return there will be a good deal of talk about the place. They generally never warm up to the election until the eleventh hour. The buyers will elect the vice-president."

"Will they stand any show for electing the president?"

"I don't know anything about that. It is probable they will put up Mr. Phillips when he comes back. Mr. Phillips, Mr. Fallon and Mr. Peyton have not returned yet."

Mr. H. Drukker, who is spoken of as the next vice-president, said: "Goldman is the only man I know of who is a candidate for president."

"Is there any chance of a buyer being elected president?"

"No; the factors keep that to themselves."

"Are you a candidate for vice-president?"

"No; that is a mistake. I am not a candidate. As to the presidency, I don't know whether Gilkeson or Hill will run, but Goldman is a sure candidate, and I believe he'll get the position."

MR. GOLDMAN,

the gentleman who appears to have the "pull" for the presidency, said, when questioned about the matter, that he would not like to say anything further than that he was a candidate for the position. He would not express himself as to whether there was opposition or not.

As no one seemed to know definitely whether Messrs Hill and Gilkeson were candidates for the position of president, the reporter threaded his way through the vociferous bulls and bears on 'Change in search of them. Mr. Jerome Hill's tall form and blue umbrella stood out distinctly in the crowd.

"Mr. Hill, are you a candidate for president of the Cotton Exchange?"

"No, sir; I am not. I would prefer not having the position. My business takes up a great deal of my time, and I know I could not spare the hours necessary to the transaction of the business pertaining to the office."

"Would you take the office if elected?"

"If elected, I should consider it a very great honor, especially as I am a young man; but I don't know that I could be elected."

"Have you ever held an office in the Cotton Exchange?"

"No, I have never held office anywhere, in peace or war. You may say in this connection that I have always been in favor of the removal of the Cotton Exchange to the Merchants' Exchange, as I think that an amalgamation would be beneficial to the mercantile interests of St. Louis."

Mr. Gilkeson was conversing with a friend when the momentous question was sprung on him.

"I couldn't accept the presidency under any circumstances. I don't know of any candidate except Mr. Goldman. I am committed to him, having promised a year ago to support him. No, I would not accept the position if elected. My private business demands all my attention, and I don't see why a man should be expected to jeopardize his business for that position."

The Fire Fiend.

The loss was slight. The stable was insured in the Missouri State Mutual.

At 3:47 this morning a fire started in the two-story brick building, No. 1501 Wash street, used by Mrs. Smith as a grocery. About $50 damage to stock, with a small loss on the building. The stock was not insured. The building is owned by Samuel Jacobson.

At the Phœnix Planing Mill fire last night, a two-story brick building, owned by Frank Shopper and occupied by tenants, was damaged by a falling wall. The insurance on the building has not been ascertained. At the same fire the dwelling house, No 401 South Twelfth street, was damaged by the heat. Insurance not ascertained.

A BIG FAILURE.

Anthony & Kuhn, Brewers, Suspend—Liabilities Nearly $400,000.

The Anthony & Kuhn Brewing Company, which recently formed into a stock company, with Henry Anthony as President, and Francis Kuhn as Secretary, it was rumored on 'Change this morning, is financially embarrassed. It was quoted on the commercial list that a meeting of creditors had been called for to-morrow. The report created great surprise in business circles, as the company was considered one of the most solid in the city. The liabilities were placed by one brewer as high as somewhere between $350,000 and $400,000. The indebtedness to one firm for grain amounts to $10,000. The Fourth National Bank, German American Bank, and a saloon-keeper named Eberle are said to be the heaviest creditors. The causes of the embarrassment are said to be too great an extension of business and the establishment of agencies by which a large amount of the firm's paper was put out, and it has been unable to meet maturing notes.

The Anthony & Kuhn Brewing Company was incorporated on the 17th day of September, with a capital stock of $150,000, half paid up. The incorporators were Henry Anthony, Francis Kuhn and Austin Vogt, of St. Louis. Previous to that time Messrs. Anthony & Kuhn had been running the brewery. They have a brewery and garden, corner of Sidney and Buel, the property very extensive and valuable. An uptown depot has been established at 112 North Fifth street, which has been known as Anthony & Kuhn's saloon. The firm has been in business for more than fifteen years, and was always regarded as a very prosperous and paying concern.

A number of brewers who were found together at dinner at Tony Faust's this afternoon seemed to be universally of the opinion that the firm would tide over this squeeze and that they would soon be on their feet again.

A meeting of the creditors has been called, to be held at the Garden at 12 m. to-morrow, at which time the firm will make a full statement and a proposition for payment.

Messrs. Broadhead and Hauessler are the attorneys for the creditors and were in consultation with numbers of them to-day.

READY FOR THE RUSH.

The Number of Visitors that Can be Accommodated During Fair Week.

The hotel men and others who expect to furnish accommodations to the immense crowds that throng to the city during the Fair are taking down and dusting off cots, furnishing vacant rooms and otherwise preparing to welcome the rush. With a view of ascertaining the hotel capacity of the city a POST-DISPATCH reporter visited the various hostelries and obtained estimates of the number of people that can be lodged in the city. Most of the hotels will not engage rooms, but only promise to do the best they can for their patrons. This plan is followed because it is more profitable to fill rooms to their utmost capacity and it affords greater facilities for accommodation. Parties large enough to fill rooms, however, can engage them by paying in advance. Several of the large hotels let out their rooms on the usual plan and refuse to pack to the discomfort of guests. The Southern Hotel can accommodate 1,000 people easily, and on a pinch can lodge 1,500. The Laclede will take 1,300; the St. James has arrangements for 1,200, Lindell 1,000, Planters' 1,000, Barnum's 1,000, Hurst's 800, Hotel Barnum 450, New Hotel Moser 450, Hotel Hunt 350, People's House 300, Koetter's Hotel 400, Atlantic 100, City Hotel 200, Mound City 300, Mona House 190, old Hotel Moser 75, Chestnut Street Hotel 200, Hotel Brown 200, Monroe House 100, Star Hotel 50. The Bristol and Belvedere are generally full of regular boarders, but arrangements have been made for the accommodation of 100 each during the week. The Grand Central, and other smaller houses will swell the number 500 more, making in all that the hotels alone can lodge. This is only a small item in the capacity of the whole city, when nearly every vacant room is utilized. The boarding-houses and flats must be taken into consideration, and numbers of private families throw open their houses. Besides this, rooms in all the buildings where such can be found are comfortably fitted up and made use of. The lodging bureau also calls into requisition a large number of apartments that would not otherwise be utilized. Nearly every family has friends who make large drafts on its hospitality on Veiled Prophets' night. Taking all these means of accommodation into consideration it would be safe to say that not less than 100,000 people can be housed in the city without extraordinary strain on its capacity.

NEARLY 12,000 PEOPLE

In the matter of board the capacity of the city may be said to be practically limitless, and there may be no fear but that the number of visitors according to the highest anticipations can be easily and comfortably entertained.

The Bridal Bulletin.

The following marriage licenses were issued to-day: Joseph Grob to Mrs. Mary E. Tora; Patrick J. Leonard to Miss Catherine A. Curley; Luther M. Emerson to Miss Alvina M. Ruebsamen; William Ewing to Miss Lucy Thacker; Hamlin Russell to Miss Annie A. Cochrane; William E. Griffith to Miss Mary E. Wheelock, and Walter N. Barnett to Miss Isle Richie.

Arrested.

Thomas Roach was arrested in East St. Louis about noon to-day by the Chief of Police and Detective Furlong. He robbed the till of a saloon on Broadway and ran out the back way. The officers chased him a mile and a half before he was captured.

Wedding.

THE wedding of Mr. Wm. P. Gaines of Texas to Miss Augusta Evans of Compton Hill took place this afternoon at St. George's Church. Mr. Gaines is editor of a prosperous paper at Austin, Texas, and owner of a large cattle ranche in the same State. Miss Evans is the eldest daughter of Mr. G. A. Evans, an old resident of Compton Hill. The wedding was a very quiet affair, only a few of the relatives of the contracting parties attending. A reception will be held at the residence of the bride's parents, after which the newly-married couple will start on their [illegible]

FILLEY IN A FIX.

The "Boss" Admits that He Got That $6,000.

But He Refuses to Say What He Did with It—The Republican Politician Placed in an Unenviable Light—Talks With Chauncey I. Filley and E. P. Fox.

Another chapter is out in the story of the $6,000 alleged to have been paid by Mr. Crashaw to Mr. Filley for Dr. McLean. This chapter is the publication of the receipts given by Mr. Filley for the sums of money and they were paid in separate installments. Some of them are signed "F," some "C. I. F." and on two of them are the words, "From the Committee."

But Mr. Fox, who handled them, is positive that five of them are in Filley's handwriting, and that most of them are written on a peculiar kind of paper, which Mr. Filley uses, and the Globe-Democrat confirms this statement. A POST-DISPATCH reporter called on Mr. Filley at his residence to-day to see what reply he had to make to Mr. Fox's last attack.

"What reply have I to make?" said Mr. Filley. "None. What have I to do with this cow-boy, Fox? He has no right at all to come in and ask me what I did with money. What is it his business? Let me ask you one question?"

"What is it?"

"Have I ever stated in public, or otherwise, that there was no money used in the campaign?"

"Not that I ever heard."

"Well, I never did. Everybody knows that money was spent. And another thing; I never said that I spent my own money. I never intended to. Now, Mr. Fox wants to know what I did with a certain $6,000. It's none of his business. Did he pay me any money? As I said before, why do not McLean or Crashaw ask some questions? They are the men to make objections. If they are satisfied what right has Mr. Fox to ask questions? I'll tell you what is the matter with Fox. He thought he was running this whole campaign. He finds out that he was running the brass band end of it. You know what the brass band end is. That is the whooping and shouting part which is always given to some fellow with leather lungs and a cast-iron throat. Seven or eight months after the election is all over Mr. Fox suddenly discovers that somebody else had something to do with the campaign. He has found out a few facts that he never knew before. After this long wail and they surprise him awfully. This makes him talk. He thought he was doing it all. When he finds he was only a tender he gets up and paws."

"But these receipts—what have you to say about them?"

"Nothing at all. The man who is alleged to have paid the money, and the man in whose interest it was paid has said nothing, and was, as far as I can find out, satisfied. When Mr. Fox came up here to talk to me he brought along a Notary Public as a witness. Let that man tell what happened. I told Mr. Fox to his face that neither he nor Dr. McLean had money enough to purchase a nomination from our committee. I told him it was none of his business as to the amount of money I got, or as to whether I ever got money or not. As I say, when the proper persons ask questions I'll answer. I never propose to take any notice of him. He has been saying all kinds of things and telling this story all over the streets. He said, among other things, that the night he came up here he intended to throw me out of the window. I wonder what he wants, anyhow?"

"Then you do not propose to say whether you got this money, as the receipts seem to show, or what you did with it?"

"I do not propose to answer Fox, because he had no business to ask."

MR. E. P. FOX

was seen later and he said: "I have no more talking to do. Everybody said to me 'Produce these receipts and that settles the matter.' They have been produced. They show that the money was paid, and that part of it was, as the receipt reads, 'for the committee.' Now the committee knew nothing about this money at all. Pohlman says so. State Senator Rogers told me that none of the committee ever heard anything about it, and that Filley and all of them were kicking because McLean put up only $400. The question is, then, what has Filley done with the money for which he gave these receipts? If he is willing to make no answer to these receipts except to abuse me I am willing to let the public judge between us. The receipts speak for themselves, and if he is ready to lie down with such a collar round his neck and snarl at me I think that he is making a pretty spectacle of himself."

"How did the fight over the matter originate?"

"I'll tell you. Filley talked to Ewing and stated to him that McLean's name was put on the ticket solely on account of a letter written by Mayor Ewing. He further asked that Ewing cut the throats of myself and other of McLean's friends so far as the State was concerned, and that his (Filley's) name go in, as it did. His argument was that McLean had no claim upon Ewing, because Ewing's letter was the only thing that put McLean's name on the Filley ticket for Congress. Mayor Ewing told me all this himself. I went to Filley and said: 'See here, you put McLean's name on that ticket, because you got $6,000 for doing it.' He denied it, and then the controversy began, and I was compelled to prove the matter as I did."

RELIGIOUS GOSSIP.

The Ladies' Missionary Society held a meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the church parlors of the North Church.

Bishop Bowman, of the M. E. Church, left this morning for Belleville, Ill., to preside over the Southern Illinois Conference, which begins to-day.

The Rev. T. H. Hagerty, presiding elder of the St. Louis District, has returned from Vichy Springs, where he has been rusticating for his health.

The following Methodist ministers are in the city on their way to the Southern Illinois conference which convenes to-day: The Rev. O. H. Clark, the Rev. G. A. Seed, the Rev. J. B. Reynolds, the Rev. R. W. Laughlin, the Rev. R. M. Carter, and the Rev. W. Van Cleve.

At 9 o'clock this morning the fall meeting of the St. Louis Presbytery was continued at the North Church, corner of Eleventh and Chambers street. The first half hour of the meeting was taken up with devotional exercises. At 9:30 the usual business session was held, and continued until noon, when the meeting adjourned.

FOUR COURTS NOTES.

For throwing stones into a train, Mary Newcomb was sent to jail for three months.

Frank Schultz was sent to the Work House for nine months by Judge Noonan to-day for a petty theft.

Barney Murphey's stables, rear of 2706 Walnut street, were damaged to the extent of $30 by fire at 4 o'clock this morning.

Motions for new trials were made to-day in the Criminal Courts in the cases of Frank Braggs, Jno. Mackey and Henry Wilson.

Deputy Coroner Peck held an inquest this morning on the body of Anna Kuechler, who was accidentally burned to death yesterday at Minnesota avenue and Cherokee street.

KIDNAPED FROM SCHOOL.

A Nine-Year-Old Boy Taken from His Class-Room, and Missing.

Stephen Evans, aged 9 years, was a pupil at the Lincoln School until yesterday afternoon, when at 2 o'clock he was hurried away out of room No. 10, of which Miss M. B. Brown is in charge, by a lady who acted so strangely as to excite the suspicion of the teacher. The boy had for the past five or six months been stopping with his uncle and aunt at their residence, 2009 Olive street. His father, D. H. Evans, is a conductor on the St. Louis, Fort Scott and Wichita Railroad, running between the latter two points. He has been a conductor for thirteen years. The mother lives at Sedalia, and the parents have property there. They separated about six months ago, the father bringing little Stephen to St. Louis and giving him to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Evans to take care of. The father filed a suit for divorce on some ground, not known by his brother, and the suit is now pending in the Sedalia courts. Another boy, by a former husband, was retained by the wife. All the facts in connection with the kidnaping of Stephen are pretty much embodied in the following note written by the teacher to the boy's aunt:

"MADAM—A few minutes before 2 o'clock a lady came and asked for Stephen Evans. She came into my room and took the child from the room, saying that she had been stolen from her five months ago. She hurried away so that I could not get a chance to reply or find out further particulars. I think it best to let you know. Respectfully,

"M. B. BROWN,
"Lincoln School, No. 10."

Mrs. Evans sent her daughter to the school to make further inquiries, and got a vague description of the woman who took Stephen away. The description tallies with that of the boy's mother, and all the circumstances point to the fact that the kidnaper is the mother. Mr. Evans telegraphed the father, and immediately proceeded to the Four Courts, whence he was sent to the Union Depot to see and and advise Sergeant Burke. He remained there himself during the afternoon, and could get sight of neither the boy nor the mother. Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon he has not heard from nor seen either of them.

"The description," said Mr. Evans to a POST-DISPATCH reporter this afternoon, "points to the mother as the kidnaper, but I am not so sure it is she. If I were I would feel all right. But I think it a rather queer condition of things that anybody can go to one of our schools and get possession of a child on such a meagre representation. I have a daughter going to that school, myself, and if this is the way they do things anybody can go there, represent himself or herself as the father or mother of the child and take her away. There should be some protection for children and parents in our schools, and it appears to me we haven't got any thing of the kind now."

FAILED AGAIN.

Another Attempt to Burglarize Col. Butler's Residence this Morning.

Burglars seem to be especially fond of the residence of Col. J. G. Butler, which is situated near the corner of Shaw and Grand avenues. An account was published yesterday of an attempt to enter the house, and that of Collector N. C. Hudson, which took place on the night before. At 3 o'clock this morning, as the milkman drove up to the Butler residence, he noticed two men on the back porch, who were busily working at a door. He drove around to the front, left his wagon there, and came back into the alley with his revolver drawn. Before the burglars were aware of his presence, he had fired one shot, which missed both of them. The men ran, pursued a short distance by the milkman. He fired, and one of the fellows returned the shot. They went down the alley and disappeared up Grand avenue. The shooting awakened all the occupants, and for a time there was considerable excitement. In their flight the burglars dropped a five-chambered Smith & Wesson revolver which was afterwards found on the porch, where they were at work. Col. Butler is absent from the city, and Mrs. Butler called in William Hudson, son of the Collector, to go through the house and to remain about until morning. About an hour later Mr. Hudson heard a noise, and thinking the burglars were returning for their weapon, he went down with a big revolver, intending to do some promiscuous slaughtering, when he met two policemen who had come to investigate. Burglaries are growing very numerous in that neighborhood, and the residents state that the police have beats so large that they afford only a pretense of protection.

CITY PERSONALS.

Wm. Stout, of the Knapp, Stout & Co. Company, returned to-day from Dubuque.

Mrs. B. J. Gibson of this city and Mrs. Annie Knowles of Jacksonville, Ill., have returned home after a visit to the Louisville Exposition and the Mammoth Cave.

Gen. J. P. Gooding, who is to deliver his lecture on "Future America," before the Y. M. C. A., October 18, has just returned to the city after a prolonged visit to his old home in Indiana.

Will J. Thornton, city editor of the Globe-Democrat, after a severe spell of sickness has recovered and gone back to his desk. John C. Martin filled the chair during Mr. Thornton's illness.

Mr. Joseph B. McCullagh, editor of the Globe-Democrat, is in Chicago, and will probably return to this city to-morrow. He is entirely restored to health and expects soon to be at his old post again.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 P. M.

The bulls on wheat seem to be making hay while the sun shines, and they are taking hold of the opportunity afforded them by somewhat stronger European markets and a reported export demand to elevate prices. Public cables this morning were clothed in dullness and depression, and declines were given of 6d to 9d, but private advices reported an advance of 3d and stronger feeling in English markets and French markets firmer. It was also said that London was buying wheat in Chicago and New York. A great many of the shorts turned tail and run on the strength of these better reports, and the bulls at once became jubilant. Their time had come at last and they were on the eve of a big advance—so they said. But, after the first spurt, prices commenced to sag, and the buoyancy that had characterized the market disappeared. The export demand did not pan out as well, either, as they expected. The following telegram from Shepard & Peacock, of Chicago, to C. H. Wall, shows what it amounted to: "Several large orders in New York from London to cover short wheat. Other exporters buying options." If this is true, it shows that London speculators were only taking in profits on short wheat, and that home exporters were not buying the cash wheat.—The exports from New Orleans to-day were 49,422 bu. corn and 1,235 bu. wheat for Liverpool. Ocean freights quoted at 5¼d.—Irwin, Orr & Co., of Chicago, in their circular letter say: "The new crop has moved one-third more freely than a year ago, and is piling in upon the reserves of old at a rate which makes it necessary to keep up the artificial condition of a premium on future deliveries. This is itself a cogent argument for lower prices. Foreign buyers show little more inclination to take hold now than they did at a point 15 cents higher than now. They have large stocks at home, and wheat offered by Old World farmers at prices which are even lower than ours. Hence, our visible supply is increasing at the rate of nearly 2,000,000 bu per week, of which increase Chicago contributes 280,600 bu; and only another six weeks lies between us and the edge of the winter season. From present appearances a big pile of wheat will have to be carried through into spring, and capital does not want to carry it except on a low valuation."—There appears to be a coolness between a couple of operators in the "pit." They are refusing to take another's contracts.—The stock of lard in New York on September 15 was 17,350 tcs, against 12,128 tcs one year ago.—J. P. Carr, the Exchange caller, returned this morning from a trip to the North. He would have got here sooner, only he missed a car in Chicago. During his absence Dan Bartlett, the old caller, did the noon call in good style.—A barge load—25,000 bu.—of No. 2 rye is almost ready for river shipment. It is destined for Europe.—Samples of new corn from Jacob Shaul, Marianna, Ark., were shown on 'Change by Adler, Goldman & Co. to-day. They were magnificent specimens.—The export-demand-and-stronger-cables boom petered out very rapidly to-day. Chicago appears to be milking this market and her own with success.

Wheat futures were pretty badly mixed to-day. The feeling was weak early on public cables reporting declines of 6@9d and dull markets, but ere long advices were received of stronger European markets, and an export demand in New New York. This started shorts to buying again, and this demand, with the aid of a few bulls left and the scalping element sent prices upward. The feeling, however, was more or less unsettled, and there was not much confidence felt in the advance, so that later in the day when when other markets commenced to let down and late cables reported dull and heavy markets, there was a rush to sell that caused a sharp decline. The close was ⅜c better for October and ½c lower for November and December, as compared with yesterday's close. Corn followed wheat pretty closely in its fluctuations, being chiefly influenced by that market. Trading was chiefly in the year option, which closed ⅜c below yesterday, while September was unchanged, November 1-16c off and May ½c lower. Oats were firm and higher, but very quiet, as there were few operators who cared about doing anything. Cash wheat was higher, and the demand continued active. Cash corn was firmer and in good request. Cash oats advanced, and were firm and in demand.

Rye—Grade No. 2 in demand, meeting ready sale at 53; rejected was held at 48, with 46 bid.

Flour—The market to-day developed a little firmer feeling, and the trade was a shade better, owing to the small supply of choice and all grades below, the inquiry being mostly for these on Eastern, Southern and local account. All above choice were quiet and unchanged. We quote: The inside price for strong grades and outside lots between grades): Extra fancy $5 30@5 45; fancy $4 90@5 10; choice $4 65@4 75; family $4 00@4 10; xxx $3 50@3 65; xx $3 15@3 25; x $2 75@2 90; superfine $2 50@2 70; fine $2 20@2 25; patent $5 65@6 40. These prices are for lots on arrivals at depot and levee; favorite brands 25c more and order lots higher.

Cornmeal—Unchanged at $2 20@2 25 on order delivery; pearl meal grits and hominy $3 60@3 40.

Rye Flour—Quiet at $3 60@3 75.

Millfeed was dull and low; offerings were lower and demand light. Sacked bran 64@65 at mill, 66 f. o. b. this side, 65@66½ E. track; bulk bran 51@52 at country point, 53f. o. b. E. Track.

Hay—Active and firm. This side—Prairie: $8@8 25 for prime to strictly prime; $8 50@8 75 for choice to fancy; mixed $8@10 for common to choice; timothy $11@15, top rate for fancy. East side 50@$1 per ton lower than above rates.

Provisions were stronger in feeling and price, and the demand showed an improvement. Quite a large amount of dry salt meats sold at up country points, but the only spot transactions were of boxed longs at 6.15@6¼ and shorts at 6.60. Standard mess pork jobbed at $11 25@11 50. Prime steam lard had 7⅝ bid. Packed bacon longs brought 6⅝@6¾, c'ribs at 6¾@6⅞ and shorts at 7⅛, and loose shorts at 7. Hams 13¼@15, mainly 14@14½; Tallow 7¼@⅜ for prime summer in oil barrels. No. 2 6¾@7 and irregular package 7⅛@7¼; grease tallow 6¼. Breakfast bacon 10@12½; on orders 10½@13. Grease 4¾@5 for brown, 5¼@5¾ for yellow; 6@6¼ for white. Beef—Extra mess $15@16 per barrel according to brand; $8@8 50 per half barrel; dried 12@13; selected 13@14; on orders ¼c higher. Fresh smoked tongues $5@6 ₱ dozen. Salt—Domestic $1 25 this side, $1 20 E. side per barrel; ground alum $1 15 per sack for round lots. $1 20@1 25 in a small way.

Highwines—Still active and firm at $1 14 with sales amounting to 163 brls. Cincinnati active and steady at $1 13; Chicago unchanged at $1 16; Peoria firm at $1 15.

Lead—Steady and firm. Refined was saleable at $4 05 and hard at $4.

Grass Seeds—Timothy in demand and steady with sales of 225 sks at $1 28, 192 sks at $1 27. Clover dull and easier; prime seed selling at $4 52½; red-top quiet at 40@50c.

Flaxseed—Steady, with sales of 118 sks at $1 29, and 1 car at same.

Hempseed—Nominal at $1 40@1 50.

Castor Beans—In demand with $1 75 bid on a basis of pure.

Cotton.

Spots to-day were quiet and generally steady with a very fair movement at all points, the market especially sharing an improvement in this respect, the transfers amounting to over 230 bales. Futures were again lower, there being a decline at all markets except Liverpool, which was higher than on yesterday, the total advance amounting to 2-64d. Both of the home markets were reported steady in tone but opened lower, New York being off 5 to 6 points, while New Orleans was marked by a reduction of 2 to 10 points. Later values stiffened up and advanced, only to fall off again. Still, all things considered, the markets were generally pretty steady, there being no violent fluctuations, they being confined to a very small range. The movement still continues large. The bears characterize the late boom as unnatural. It is claimed by them that there is no export movement, and values in consequence must come down; that Liverpool is too cheap, and the home markets will have to go lower. Said one, "we cannot salt our cotton, and we must export it." And yet the reports of damage to crops continue to arrive daily, and the bulls claim that cotton is a big purchase.

Country Produce.

BUTTER—Offerings of strictly choice and fancy qualities of both Creamery and Dairy have been about sufficient during the week to supply the demand, which has been fair, and the market on these has ruled firm and has advanced since our last, while off qualities have been in large supply, with but little inquiry—nominally unchanged during the week. We quote: Creamery at 26@28; seconds at best dairy rates. Dairy 21@22 for choice to fancy; fair 12@15; low grade 8@10. Good to choice near-by in pails 10@12; common 7@8.

POULTRY—In good supply, demand moderate, market dull. We quote: Spring Chicken—Small and scrubby $1@1 25; fair to good-sized $1 50@2; choice to fancy large $2 25@2 50. Old chickens—Cocks $2 25@2 50; mixed $2 75@3; choice to fancy hens $3 25@3 50. Spring ducks $2 25@2 75; young turkeys 12c ₱ lb.

GAME—Grouse dull and dragging; supply heavy; easy; quote selected young at $3@3 50, and old $2@2 50. Venison quiet sale; carcasses 8@9 ₱ lb for buck and 9@10 for doe; saddles 15@16c. Ducks easy; mallard $2 25@2 50, teal $2@2 25, wood duck $1 50@1 75. Woodcock nominal at $4, golden plover at $1, snipe $2.

VEALS—Firm. Small fat milk-fed 8@8½; medium do 7@7½; heretics 3@5 ₱ lb. Lambs—1 50@2 75 ₱ head.

EGGS—Steady at 17½ for choice marks.

WOOL—This market has ruled strong during the week, but few lots being offered, which were readily taken up at satisfactory prices—in some instances very desirable lots were taken at a fraction above our quotations. Unchanged during the week: Tub—Choice 33@34; fair 31@32; common 28@30. Unwashed—Choice medium 23@24; fair medium 21@22; ¼-blood combing 22; low and coarse grades 16@20; light fine 21@22; heavy do 15@17. Kansas—Bright medium 18@19; light fine 16@18; heavy do 12½@14; carpet stock 13@15. Black, burry, cotted, etc., 5@10c ₱ lb less.

FEATHERS—Lower and quiet. We quote: Prime L. G., 57 in large and 58 in small sacks; unripe and quilly 40@45; mixed 10@30; tare 3 and 10 ₱ cent.

HIDES—Market quiet and weak, but quotably unchanged. We quote: Green—Salted 8; damaged 6; branded 7; bulls or stags 6. Green—Uncured 6½; glue stock 3. Dry—Flint 16; damaged 13; bulls or stags 10; dry salted 11½; do damaged 10; glue stock 5; kip and calf classed as damaged.

SHEEP PELTS—Green pelts 45@70c; dry do 35@60, as to amount and quality of wool; green shearlings 15@20; dry do 10@20.

DEERSKINS—Quiet at 25@26; damaged 16@18; green 12@13.

BROOM CORN—Market almost bare of choice and fancy stock, which is in brisk demand and highe. We quote: Fancy self-working 5@6; choice do 4@5; fair to prime 2¼@3; common to fair 2@2½.

BEESWAX—Firm at 25@26 for choice.

HOPS—Dull. New York quiet at 30@32.

Fruits and Vegetables.

PEACHES—Delaware Smocks dull, and sold very slow at 50@1 50 ₱ bu box, according to quality. Illinois fruit also dull and dragging—choice to fancy freestone at 75@$c ₱ ⅓-bu box, and small clings at 25@30.

PEARS—Scarce and grim, demand good. Quote: Bartlett $1@1 25, Duchess and Sickle 75@90, and common 40@60 per ⅓-bu box.

GRAPES—Quiet and unchanged. Quote: Concord at 7@8 and Virginia Seedling 5@6 per lb.

PLUMS—Damsons wanted at $5 per bu, red at 75c per ⅓-bu box.

QUINCES—Ready sale at $5 per brl and $2 50 per bu.

SWEET POTATOES—Home-grown on orders, Bermuda $2 50, and Nansemond $3 75 ₱ brl.

BEETS—Home-grown on orders at $1 50 ₱ brl.

CARROTS—On orders (home-grown) at $2 75@3 ₱ brl.

CELERY—Steady. Selling in a small way at 40@50 ₱ dozen.

CABBAGE—Home-grown on orders at $2 25@2 50 ₱ crate.

SAUERKRAUT—City on orders, at $9 00 ₱ brl and $4 75 ₱ half-brl.

DRIED FRUIT—Movement active and market steady and firm. Apples—Dark 5@5½, fair to good 5¾@6, prime 6⅛@6¼, rings and sliced 6⅜@6¼, evaporated 9@11. Peaches—Quarters and mixed 5½@5¾, good to prime halves 6@6¼. Raspberries 27@28. Blackberries 9@10.

APPLES—The market was an unusually active one throughout the week, there being an active shipping demand, and the movement free. The bulk of fruit received was fine and well packed, and the healthy feeling prevalent may be attributed partly to that. Fancy large and highly-colored fruit (Belleflower, Kings, Ben Davis, Buckingham, etc.) sold readily at $3@3 25, and choice varieties (Baldwin, red streak, winesap, Pennock, Pippin, etc.) at $2 25@2 75; common fruit (domino, northern spy, rambo, russets, etc.) sold fairly at $1 50@2; small, specked mixed, poorly packed or otherwise inferior were slow sale at 75@$1 25 ₱ brl, as in kind.

POTATOES—Receipts by river and rail light, and the stock met fair sale at 32@33 ₱ bu.

ONIONS—Sold rather slow early in week, as buyers were anticipating large receipts—ranged at $1 60 ₱ brl on levee and $1 65 del, and 63@65 ₱ bu in sacks on levee. Saturday there was an active movement at $1 50@1 55 ₱ brl and 63 ₱ bu, at which prices the market ruled quiet and steady rest of the week.

Leaf Tobacco.

[From Harker & Pritchard's Merchant's Exchange Price Current.]

Since our last weekly review the offerings have been only moderate, and the movement light; buyers (speculators, manufacturers and shippers) have showed a willingness to take hold of desirable tobaccos, but the stiff views of holders has restricted sales. There is a strong under-current for all descriptions, and a boom may be looked for in the near future. To-day, fairly active and strong—the demand continues brisk. Sales: 2 hhds common lugs at $4 85; 12 colory do at $5 50; 1 burley scraps at $5 80; 2 common leaf at $6@6 60; 2 at $7 30@7 90; 3 at $8 60@8 90; burley leaf—1 each at $10 25, $11 75, $12, and $14; 3 at $12 05; 2 at $13 25. Passed, 1 hhd, and bids rejected on 1 hhd nondescript lugs at $2 4; 10 colory lugs and common leaf at $5; 5 common leaf at $6@6 80; 10 do at $7@7 40; 4 at $8@8 20; 1 medium do $9, 2 at $10@11; 2 Virginia wrappers at $14 25 and $20.

We quote, ₱ 100 lbs: Lugs—Common to good dark and red $4@5, do colory and burley $4 50@6 50. Leaf—Common to medium dark and red $5@7, good to fine do $8 50@11, common to medium colory and burley $6@12, good to fine do $13@20. Factory-dried—Short $6 50@7 50. Wrappers—Common $12@20, medium to good $25@40, choice to fancy $45@65. Trashy, light weight and damaged sell 25@50c less than above.

LIVE STOCK.

Receipts and shipments for 24 hours, ending at 11 a. m. to-day, are as follows:

CATTLE—Receipts to-day were small when compared with previous Wednesdays. This day is usually looked upon as one of the "red-letter" days of the week and large runs are anticipated. Operators, however, were disappointed, the arrivals proving otherwise, and up to a late hour in the morning the receipts were hardly up to those of the day before. In a general way the market for shipping cattle was slow, the movement sluggish and the feeling weak. Buyers were poorly represented and those present exhibited little desire to trade, the few bids received from them being fully 50c below what salesmen asked. Advices from the East still continue unfavorable, and the supply on sale was small, but few native cattle of any description being received and the stale cattle not meeting buyers' views. Common and medium lots were also neglected, and nobody appeared to want them at any price, city butchers and retail dealers giving a preference to range cattle. Altogether the market for native cattle was most unsatisfactory and the outlook gloomy in the extreme. The market for range cattle, although somewhat unsettled, showed decidedly more life, and in the opinion of both buyer and seller fully as good as yesterday, when grass Indians brought as high as $4 37½ for steers of over 1,100 lbs, and although dealers were anticipating a more liberal run than what was had and seemed disposed to hold off. A very good trade was had during the opening hours, and sales were made from the chutes to city dealers who paid higher figures than could have been obtained had these cattle been yarded. Although there are more cattle due to arrive, salesmen are not sanguine of any improvement in business. We quote:

HOGS—The supply was quite liberal, but under a very good inquiry from the various classes of buyers who were present soon reduced. Although advices were far from favorable salesmen appeared to still have the upper hand, and, although the prices obtained were not materially different from those current the day before, they were higher than buyers liked to pay, but still they did it. Yorkers alone showed a change and were lower, notwithstanding the strong efforts made by the holders to bull prices, the range to-day being from $4 80@4 95, with $5 bid for really choice, of which there were none, the bulk of the offerings being of a decidedly poor character. Butchers were free buyers this morning and paid from $4 90@5 10 and $5 15@5 20 for extra selected lots of heavies. The packing inquiry was very fair and sales were made at an extreme from $4 60 to $4 85 for good mixed. At these figures the movement up to 10 a. m. was fairly brisk and the market generally unchanged.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1883.

Filley owns up to handling the $6,000. Soap.

Massachusetts Republicans are mighty polite. Robinson hoped Pierce would be nominated; Pierce thought Robinson was the man on whom the opposition to Butler should unite.

New Jersey Republicans must be feeling desperate. They adopted anti-monopoly resolutions yesterday and actually declared in favor of "a system of State taxation so exactly equitable as to reach corporations." This is a symptom of reform.

"Three cheers for the dead already! Hurrah for the next to die!" was Gov. Butler's comment on Pierce's letter yesterday. The rattle of the Tewkesbury bones can be heard in all of the Governor's similes, and to the patrician ear they are very unsavory.

The Globe-Democrat this morning returns to the attempt to prove that Mr. Filley handled $6,000 of Congressman McLean's campaign fund. There is every reason to believe that long-continued connection with the Republican party has blunted Mr. Filley's keen sense of political purity.

The Republican nomination is plainly seeking the man in Massachusetts, and all the men in sight are doing their best to keep out of its way. Pierce's peremptory refusal yesterday has intensified the pre-existing panic. Burly Ben is as much of a Terror in Boston as he was in New Orleans.

If Mrs. Langtry expects to utilize Freddie in the show business again, she should get up a duel between him and Mr. Langtry. Otherwise the latter gentleman would be the most attractive card. Multitudes of Western people would pay roundly for a look at such a quiet and complaisant husband.

While the St. Louis papers present a spectacle of peace and brotherhood, in Chicago the editor of the Neue Frie Presse has had the whole stockholders' list of the Staats Zeitung arrested for criminal libel, and in Cincinnati the Commercial-Gazette company has requested its Chamber of Commerce to discipline the loathsome contemporary for making "false, malicious and reckless statements."

Brooklyn has not a single house of ill-fame nor a single gambling house. The Chief of Police, however, admits that the abundance of such establishments just across the river in New York renders it easy to suppress them in Brooklyn. He claims that Brooklyn is the most virtuous city in the Union, but does not claim that the people of Brooklyn are more virtuous than their neighbors.

With all his extra force of clerks Commissioner Dudley found himself with $39,000,000 of the pension appropriation unexpended at the end of the fiscal year. He talks now of reducing his clerical force and will ask for only $75,000,000 of the $150,000,000 which he formerly estimated as the probable expenditure of the present year. There is room for suspicion that the huge estimates of the Pension Bureau were part of the campaign against a reduction of taxes.

The New York Times and Tribune claims each a circulation of 40,000 copies a day. Under the recent reductions the Times makes its readers a dividend of $800 a day—excepting Sundays, or $250,000 a year; the Tribune permits its readers to "share in its prosperity" to the extent of $125,000. For this reduction in the price of two newspapers to the extent of $375,000 a year, or more than the interest on $12,000,000, the public are indebted to the World. The World did it with its little hatchet.

It is believed that Ex-Gov. Isaac P. Gray will be the next Democratic nominee for Governor of Indiana. He represents the sturdy "Blue Jeans" element of the party. In his message to the Legislature in 1881 he said: "In my judgment the republic cannot live long in the atmosphere which now surrounds the ballot-box. Moneyed corporations, to secure favorable legislation for themselves, are taking an active part in elections by furnishing large sums of money to corrupt the voter and purchase special privileges from the Government."

Mahone is overdoing the boss business in Virginia. The pressure he brought to bear on Judge Mayo, through the latter's two sons, who represent Mahone in the Virginia Legislature, drove the old gentleman to suicide last week. Riddleberger, Mahone's colleague in the Senate, has refused to contribute a dollar or a speech to the campaign unless Mahone allows him a fairer division of the patronage. And in the midst of these troubles in his own camp, the decision of Judge Bond has stripped the Readjuster policy of the last vestige of legality, and Arthur can no longer support Mahone without committing the Federal administration and the Republican party to a policy of open, bold and lawless repudiation. The bottom has fallen out and the little pillager's combination is rapidly going to pieces.

DEAD.

Two years ago to-day was a day memorable with sadness. Two years ago to-day the President of the country, the chosen leader of the Republican party, its pride and its strength, after long months of agonizing suffering, died amid the regrets alike of friends and of opponents.

To-day, after two years, he is so utterly forgotten that no notice whatever is taken of the day which should have been memorable. In New York a State convention of his party meets at Richfield Springs to carry out the wrangle between Stalwarts and Half-breeds on the day that should be sacred to grief.

In St. Louis the only Republican newspaper gives no evidence that it ever knew there was such a man as Garfield.

He is utterly forgotten. The monuments and memorials that were to have kept his memory visible to the eye as to the mind are abandoned or unfinished. The sycophants who crowded the White House to push their schemes and do homage to his power, now turn to honor his successor.

The only reminder of Garfield is the occasional spectacle of a political jackal running around with a bone in his mouth, dug up from the corruption of the dead man's grave.

The memory of the day is full of pity for Garfield. But what are we to think of the morality and decency of the party which insults with studied neglect a man whom it venerated two years ago as a hero and a saint? In all the annals of political ingratitude is there anything baser or meaner?

The party of great moral ideas does not seem to have such an idea left as common decency, and its neglect of Garfield is a display of cynicism which injures the party more deeply than it insults the dead.

ST. LOUIS ON TOP.

Yesterday we recorded the fact that the New York Times had suddenly reduced its price from four cents a copy to two cents.

To-day we are told that the Tribune reduces its price to three cents.

These are two of the great, rich, well-established newspapers of the country. They are admirably managed; they represent special ideas and interests, which are ably supported; they have a prosperous business; each of them owns a million dollars' worth of real estate. They never wore a more flourishing aspect than they wear now. But they have had to come down. Why?

Because a St. Louis journalist, encouraged by the success with which St. Louis had rewarded him, went to New York, and four months ago took hold of a dull New York newspaper and put Western life into it.

The growth of the World in four months has compelled two of the leading papers of New York to alter their well-considered and long-established policy.

This is a triumph for St. Louis.

The aim of the World is merely to be to New York what the Post-Dispatch has been to St. Louis.

It has started out to express the same views, to represent the same interests, to follow the same methods, to vindicate the same principles.

The Post-Dispatch is the organ of the people in St. Louis.

The World is the organ of the people in New York.

The signal triumph of the World is a triumph for St. Louis which made the World possible by making the Post-Dispatch successful.

EMILY RIGL.

How long should it take the bright and intelligent city of St. Louis to discover that it is harboring within its limits so rare a thing as—Genius?

Emily Rigl is one of the few women who can lay claim to dramatic greatness. Her presence lends dignity and grandeur to a commonplace play; the light of her genius burns with a pure and steady flame.

There are many people in St. Louis who claim to be true and honest admirers of the drama, to be subject to every high dramatic influence, and appreciative of every high dramatic excellence. Not one of these can permit it to be said that Emily Rigl played a week's engagement in St. Louis and that he did not see her.

She has come among us without any of that puffery which has been needed by less worthy artists, and which has done so much to discredit the drama among its truest lovers. When she comes again our people will have learned from others what we tell them to-day—that she is a genius. They should not wait to learn this from others when they have a chance of learning it more agreeably and more certainly as eye-witnesses of its truth.

THE SOLID OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

For six months the government of the city of St. Louis has been practically at a stand-still.

Every city officer whose term expired last April has been holding office temporarily, uncertain when the whim of a clique in the Council would renew his tenure of office or turn him out.

The city has many and pressing needs, but nothing new can be attempted, no measures of relief can even be suggested.

A majority of the men whom the voters elected to guard the public interests have placed themselves in an attitude of stubborn and determined opposition to the ordinary continuance of municipal organization.

They represent no principle. They refuse to account for their actions.

They merely stand in the road and block every exercise of the functions of the city executive.

We doubt whether any municipal body has ever exhibited so cynical a defiance of decency, so indecent a contempt for public opinion.

The present situation ought to be a warning to the citizens against the election of men who acknowledge no public responsibility. Their refusal to discharge the duties to which they were elected is costing the city every day more than they are worth.

O'DAY'S VINDICATION.

It is a pleasure to record the fact that, in re Carpenter vs. O'Day, the chairman of the Democratic State Committee has conclusively refuted the charge that he was guilty of certain crooked acts in Wisconsin a long time ago, before he migrated to this State. His vindication in that connection is complete.

It is to be hoped that he will now show as clearly that there is no impropriety in combining the functions of an attorney and general political manager for the railroads with the duty and authority of chief engineer of the Democratic party machinery in this State. We can assure Col. O'Day that such a combination has a tendency to disturb the repose of the Democratic mind, and the masses of the party would feel better without it.

Col. O'Day has in fact procured some rather startling decisions from local courts in behalf of railroads. It is not generally believed that they will pass the ordeal of the higher tribunals of justice. They certainly are at variance with the legal and Democratic gospel as expounded by the late Judge Black. Such stalwart and influential Democratic organs as the Kansas City Times are growing louder and louder in their protests against the too conspicuous exhibition of railroad influence in the management of party and State affairs. The Times says:

> A more urgent reason than nullification in St. Louis may be assigned in support of an extra session of the Legislature. The consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroad, in violation of the Constitution and laws of the State, has been accomplished before the eyes of the State Administration without a protest. The value of the railroad property of the State, estimated by Mr. Gould's rule of "earnings," at $300,000,000, but by the State Board's rule of "favors," at $40,000,000, for purposes of taxation, cries aloud for legislative attention. The law requiring the assessment of the property of the State at its value, and the law against the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroads have been as flagrantly and conspicuously violated by the roads and by the State Board of Assessors and Equalization as the Downing law in St. Louis. Three important statutes of the State, instead of one, have been nullified.

Talk of this sort from such a quarter reflects strongly on that queer combination of functions which Col. John O'Day represents. There is a tendency to regard his influential position at the head of the party organization as having something to do with these unpleasant results. Senator Halliburton months ago sounded the alarm about manifestations of undue railroad influence at Jefferson City, and the echoes are still heard throughout the State.

Many voters assume, perhaps unjustly, that Col. O'Day would sooner withdraw from his position in the Democratic Committee than resign his profitable railroad connection. Wherefore they entertain a sort of mistrust, as it were, that when the interests of the party and the policy of the railroads conflict, he may probably incline to the latter. It would be more comforting to feel that the manager of the party machinery is not subject to a divided allegiance.

One of the most striking features of the Oriole Festival at Baltimore was the presentation of the city keys by the Mayor to Lord Baltimore upon his entry into the town. Where the keys were obtained is not stated, but doubtless they were taken out of the locks of the municipal coal shed and the town jail. Medieval customs generally put the Nineteenth century to singular shifts.

Mr. Tennyson has not yet completed his monody on the death of John Brown, Esq., and Queen Victoria is said to be growing impatient for the copy. There is an American poem about John Brown's body lying a mouldering in the grave which Mr. Tennyson might adapt to the late gillie by changing the local color, if the muse continues obdurate.

And now it turns out that it was not Mary Anderson, but Dr. Ham Griffin, who snubbed the Prince of Wales. Dr. Griffin means to preserve his fair fame unblemished if it breaks a trace. In this connection we may inquire what has a poor stepfather but his name to defend him?

The peanut crop of Virginia will be a failure this year. Thus do the elements themselves combine to drive us into revolution and anarchy. American civilization is founded largely on the peanut. Thanks to Providence, the pop corn bag still remains.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, September 19.—The World says: "The reduction in the price of one of our oldest and most ponderous contemporaries yesterday, a drop from 4 to 2 cents, was a striking tribute to the success of the World, which the press of the entire country will recognize. The World has been a two-cent paper, printing the Associated Press news and furnishing eight pages of reading matter for more than a year. Within the past three months, however, and under its present management it has grown in public favor to such an extent that its success has been held to be phenomenal. The World has outstripped in circulation all of its heavy high-priced morning contemporaries, with one single exception. The first journal to acknowledge the fact is the one from which we least expected such recognition. But the recognition is none the less emphatic. What the effect upon the other three and four-cent journals will be remains to be seen, but we congratulate ourselves upon the fact that good Republicans who have hitherto been paying 4 cents for a consolatory organ can now enjoy a bright and newsy copy of the World along with it without increased cost. In other words, 4 cents will now buy both the Times and the World."

THE SUN:

The Sun says: "It is a great thing for a political party to have a man like Holman, of popular instincts, vast experience in public affairs, clean hands, a great record of public service, and a high character for good judgment as well as firmness. It is a still greater thing when this man is one who has never been complicated in faction quarrels or used up in Presidential campaigns and whose nomination for President makes a new departure in politics. The old war horses of the two parties are many of them more or less worn out, so that they attract the world no longer, but here is a fresh, original, vigorous, aggressive statesman. He is very likely to take the country by storm."

THE TIMES.

The Times prints this little fling at Whitelaw Reid and the Sun, the tower alluded to being the Tribune's: "The windows on the north side of the tower should be closed and nailed down, and those of the editorial rooms should be protected by a wire netting. The bee is a dangerous creature, he not only stings to madness at unexpected times and places but when he fastens his hot feet in locks favorably arranged, he stays, and the life of his victim becomes intolerable to himself and others. The Presidential bee has wrought irreparable damage in the Sun office; the Senatorial bee, which by some scientists is believed to be the young of the former, is nearly as destructive. The spectacle of two New York editors afflicted in a similar fashion at the same time would be too saddening. One is enough, and prompt steps should be taken in the interest of the other if its limited circle of readers now threatened, to check the mischievous work of this pestiferous insect."

THE HERALD.

The Herald says: "From Richfield Springs where the New York Republican Convention meets to-day, our correspondent reports that there was yesterday a general belief that the party will be defeated again this year. The convention is Stalwart but good-natured: the old ticket will probably be renominated. To-day being the anniversary of General Garfield's death, the Stalwarts will bring forward appropriate memorial resolutions; and the Stalwart leaders are inclined to put 'half breeds' in prominent but uninfluential places in the convention. As a sample of the spirit of the delegates our correspondent sends a story concerning Mr. Pliny T. Sexton, whose friends desire for him a place on the ticket. A zealous promoter of Mr. Sexton's advancement praised him highly to a knot of delegates as a truly liberal soul, always ready with his checks for the good of the party and the support of all sorts of Republican meetings. 'If he is such a good fellow as all that,' said a delegate, 'let's keep him over for next year. It would be a shame to nominate him this year with the certainty of defeat.'"

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "No one can foretell the Democratic nomination, but one thing seems reasonably certain, and that is that it will not go to any candidate that has a boom started five or six months before the convention meets. All the candidates appear to be aware of this, and all are accordingly shy of being made conspicuous. Mr. Tilden's maidenly coyness furnishes an example which they are all imitating. Even Mr. Holman, whose boom is just now being fashioned into a boomerang, is shrewd enough to understand the situation, and to protest that he is not a candidate. The principal Democratic industry for the next six months bids fair to be the working up of booms to kill off candidates with, and candidates who are wise will dodge them. The still hunt is the game."

POLITICAL DRIFT.

Mr. Phillips has a grip on the English language which makes the boys quake at Republican headquarters.

Senator Bayard has agreed to place one week of his time at the disposal of the Ohio Democratic State Committee.

The Rochester Post-Express labors under the impression that John Kelly's olive branch has been cut from a blackthorn tree.

Gov. Sherman, fell on the hotel stairway at Council Bluffs and hurt himself, so that he could not make his usual Prohibition speech.

Frank Hatton announces that he believes the Republicans will carry Iowa by a majority of from five thousand to eight thousand votes.

Says the Boston Post: "Abram S. may be a dyspeptic, and all that, but he'd make a tolerably good President, rough Hewitt as you may."

Col. Vilas, of Wisconsin, the free trade orator, of the Chicago Iroquois Club, believes that in 1884 the Democracy will come out uncompromisingly against a protective tariff.

Ex-Senator Chaffee of Colorado, threatens to become a candidate to succeed Senator Hill in 1885, unless Secretary Teller himself should enter the lists against his late colleague.

Judge William Lawrence, the first Comptroller of the Treasury, has left Washington in the old-fashioned way to go out to Ohio and make stump speeches for the Republican party.

Gov. Begole, Greenback Democrat of Michigan, says that both parties in his State favor a protective tariff. The Republicans are for Blaine or Arthur and the Democrats for Butler.

When the architects of the new harmony ticket, with Blaine at one end and Conkling on the other, get it tied together, the Pittsburg Dispatch advises them to hang it over a clothes-line and give the country a chance to see some fun.

Ex-Congressman McLane of Maryland, says the Democrats of that State will send a Bayard delegation to the National Convention; also, that Robert Lincoln is the only Republican whom the Democrats will be afraid of next year.

Frederick Douglass says the nomination by the Democrats of Ben. Butler would make the South solidly Democratic in 1884, because it would capture the negro vote. He could have but one successful rival, and that would be Robert Lincoln.

Of the Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, the New York Times says: "Mr. Abbett is a man of fair capacity and a good deal of force of character, but his chief merit is that he is opposed to the corrupt gang which for years has controlled the action of the State Government and has courage enough to fight against."

Large numbers of the clergymen of Iowa are preaching sermons urging their congregations to vote for the Republican ticket. Collections are taken up every Sunday and the money, it is claimed, is forwarded to the Republican State Committee. Each church is "assessed" a certain amount, and that amount at least is expected to find its way to the contribution box. The Methodist churches are most conspicuous in the business, but other denominations are engaged in it.

MEN OF NOTE.

The Philadelphia Times warns Explorer Greely that the fool-killer masquerades as a Polar bear.

Judge Kelley writes that since he has been in England he has got rid of his taste for tobacco.

The Boston Transcript thinks it does not require much penetration to understand why Jay Gould's father was poor.

The late Mr. Yale of New Haven left a fortune of $8,000,000. The Rochester Post-Express thinks him like Samson, because his strength was in his locks.

Wendell Phillips may have lost a good deal of vigor and some hair, but his stock of adjectives is as large and fresh as if it had never been tampeped with.

"I've seen you before, sir!" For twelve successive seasons F. S. Chanfrau ("Kit") has opened the season at the Boston Theater with this suggestive remark.

Germany is enjoying a temperance revival, at the head of which is Gen. Von Moltke. The old fighter has found a foeman at last worthy of his steel in King Gambrinus.

Before Elder Evans has finished his three years in jail he will be willing to make affidavit that it was a mistake to set up his church and harem combination in the Bay State.

In the British Cabinet there are three total abstainers—Sir William Harcourt, Sir Charles Dike and Mr. Chamberlain. Labouchere never drinks, Parnell seldom, Gladstone moderately, Lord Derby a good deal.

The report that Mr. G. W. Cable has offended the creoles of New Orleans and that they did not want him in their literary society has been denied. Mr. Cable's fine touches in his stories are gaining praise among the terrible English critics.

A Kissingen newspaper publishes the following statistics of Bismarck's weight, as taken during the last few years at that watering-place: In 1874, 207 pounds (German); 1876, 219 pounds; 1877, 290 pounds; 1878, 243 pounds; 1879, 247 pounds; 1880, 237 pounds; 1882, 232 pounds; 1883, 202 pounds.

Referring to his loathsome contemporary of the Enquirer, Mr. Halstead, the genial poet of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, says: "When a stumpy-tail bull-pup pursues its latter end vehemently in the dog days, and so runs in a circle, and becomes frothy and unpleasant in the unprofitable exercise, there is a suspicion that the little beast is mad, and he is usually treated with capital severity."

WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

Electric lights make blondes look consumptive, but make brunettes dazzling and brilliant.

Miss Winslow, the new American beauty in London, is from Cleveland, as well as her rival, Miss Chamberlain.

The report that Queen Elizabeth of Romania, known to literature as "Carmen Sylva," was to be divorced from King Charles proves to be erroneous.

There is an old lady named Brown, living in Hinton, Mich., whose hair is turning from gray to its original color, and she is now cutting her third set of teeth.

Dr. Mary Walker is happy at last. A wealthy old crank in Springfield, Mass., who died the other day, being moved by the poor woman's sorrows, left her $2,000.

The pretty nursegirls are rebellious in their minds at having to wear the grandmother caps with which they have been decorated by their aristocratic employers.

Dr. Lucy Hall, of the Massachusetts Woman Prison, says that nowhere is there greater need for an active work of reform than among the mill population of that State.

A West End of London agent for servants says that an English cook invariably has one of three faults—she will not be able to cook, or she will rob you, or she will be a drunkard.

Mary Anderson's highly moral refusal to be introduced to the Prince of Wales is a most excellent advertisement. Now let Maude Granger snub Gen. Sherman the first time he pokes his nose behind the scenes.

The Harvard "annex" for women is eminently successful. Two ladies out of a class of five have become engaged to their teachers, and another is permitting one of the young professors to swing on her father's gate.

The New York Mail and Express intimates that none of the American girls just home from Europe seem to think Miss Chamberlain pretty; also that the latter is likely to be cut out in the affections of the Prince of Wales by Miss Winslow, another American beauty, who has charmed him at Hamburg.

Mrs. Kate Sothern of Georgia, who in a frenzy of jealousy killed Narcissa Cowart some years ago at a dance, was sent to a convict camp kept by a relative, and her husband was permitted to accompany her. She had two children born during her nominal imprisonment, and was pardoned. Last week another Georgia woman, Roxie Wilson, killed a Miss Smith at a dance in Pierce County, that State.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Where the Readers of the Post-Dispatch Get a Hearing.

St. Louis, September 18, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Probably your readers remember the assertion of St. Watermelon Brown, that one of the chief aims of the prohibitory movement were the eradication of the "Infidel philosophy of the Eighteenth century, brought to this country by the Germans." In good keeping with this wail is the following, which I copy from the Missouri Republican of Sunday, 16th instant: "Religious Povery: Teutonic Desecration of the Sabbath." The heading seems to be original with the Republican and is evidently a poor attempt of the Knapps to get even with the damned Infidels who captured Camp Jackson in 1861! A Rev. Green who does full honors to his name, boldly asserts "that the German citizens of St. Louis had but one church and two stations, although they numbered 175,000!" A Rev. Lewis drew a deplorable picture of the situation in Franklin County, where any number of young people of 16 years could be found who had never heard a sermon, and a Rev. Weirich admitted that over half the Germans did not attend church, while Rev. Neal complained of 20,000 bad Carondeletians who had never listened to a sermon either. Looking for a cause of this evil Mr. Aaron Bullard, who it will be seen is not a reverend, places it to the influence of dramshops, one of which could be found on every block for a distance of fifteen miles. Now, Mr. Editor, if Christianity were identical with religion this would be a deplorable state in fact. But the idea to fight the devil on a mathematical basis, which seems to underlie Mr. Bullard's statistical report, is suggestive of the onesidedness of the whole class of self-constituted evangelists. The church with them is the Baptist Church; religion with them is ceremoniality, and Christianity the only form of religion extant, and to be recognized. Indeed, as only two million people of the fifty-two million inhabiting this country are church members, according to the United States census of 1880, religion would seem to be sorely on the decline, and not only among the Germans, who have probably done as much for theology as any other people on the face of the globe. It is hardly necessary to enter into an argument with the reverend gentlemen of any sect, as they are all so overbearing as to admit of nothing but the porapodictic dogmas of their own choice, yet it may be well for the present to state that the educated German (and the schooling of the Germans is among the best on earth so that the educated German is "numerous in the land") believes with Goethe:

"Who'er possesses art and science
He also has religion;
Who does not possess these twain,
Let him have religion."

Again, that form of Christianity which might be known as "American Christianity," is something foreign to the most deeply religious German and foreigner generally, probably the Englishman excepted. Religion is, with the German, an affair of the heart—an individual affair—and the "uncontrollability of Germanic character" is nowhere more obvious than in the religious sphere. And, finally, Humboldt, Goethe, Schiller, Kant, et id omne genus, are in our conception of the term religion as good representatives of the divine nature in man as any founder of any creed or sect, and, while we may be wrong, we may be right, most assuredly we do not press our views upon others by sumptuary laws "and such," to use the phrase of Marryat's Mr. Kophagus. Neither will we submit to any dictations, misrepresentations, vituperations or any petty attempts at lowering our standing by labeling us "infidels," which means "immoral people," with the thousands of fools this country is cursed with. Our standing for morality, diligence, honesty and intelligence is exceptionally fair (please hear Mr. Marshall Field of Chicago, the great business man, on this point, or if this offend local pride, Mr. Samuel Cupples, who cannot be said to be partial to us religiously, will do very well). Above all things we have not developed that "glorious character," the dead-beat, who is mostly "socially, religiously and politically" so "well connected," an essential feature of "Americanism," which attempts to set itself up as the "measure for the eternal fitness of things," moral, religious, scientific, amid the derision of all sane minds.

Yours, SEMPER IDEM.

Laflin's Maiden Speech.

St. Louis, September 19, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The morning papers have scarcely done the fair thing in not reporting the admirable maiden speech of our worthy citizen, S. H. Laflin, before the Historical Society last night. The Post-Dispatch will do a favor to the society by publishing it in full:

Mr. President—I came into this society to learn and to work. I have begun learning to-night—now for work. This society must get up and git. Its condition is a disgrace to the public. Mr. Hilder has just told us its collections have recently been visited by persons from all over the country. Now what's the result? These people go away and report all over the United States that St. Louis has chugged its Historical Society into a hole to keep it out of sight. It's disgusting, sir! What do big exposition buildings count for when this is the case? It's like a man building a palace for himself and leaving his mother and elder brother to starve round the corner. We must get up and git out of the hole. I can't write history, but I can help learn to make it, and good history, too. We must get out of the hole. Callet, and Bishop Robertson, and Hilder, and a few other wonder-working members can't do all. We want 2,000 members; must have 'em anyhow, somehow, no matter how. That will make us independent. Then we can make our own history, and it won't be written with Mr. McAdams' pictures and holyglifics, but in bricks, and stone and mortar, and a decent building of our own. We want the members outside of Col. Leighton's subscription books. Let's coax, cajole, persuade, talk rough, talk sweet, talk like a Dutch Uncle, turn things inside out and outside in, make a fuss, take 'em by storm, open doors wide, good things inside, and the people will come. Yes, sir, if we make ourselves awfully in earnest the people will come and help us. Yes, sir, the hole in which we are in is a nasty, dirty place—a horrible place—unfit for decent people. We must get up and git. That's the long and the short of it.

HISTORICUS.

A High-Handed Official.

St. Louis, September 18, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May I be permitted, as an old subscriber to your people's paper, which is read by thousands of people every day, to ask you whether a citizen cannot call at a police station and ask a few questions of the officer on duty without being insulted by that dignitary? I had occasion last night to visit the Chestnut Street Station on business in which I was deeply interested. The Sargeant on duty, whose name I believe to be Watkins, was overbearing and insulting. He then and there told me I was no better than the man who was confined in a cell on a serious charge, and whom I requested to see, and that he (Watkins) believed I was in collusion with this man, and in a pompous manner then and there sought to assume the functions of a judge. Now, Mr. Editor, will you let me know, and let every citizen and tax-payer know (which I profess to be) whether this city hireling can insult with impunity the very people who pay taxes to support him and others like him? What is my remedy? Is there no way to put a damper on this man? Is there no way to sit upon his would-be dignity? Respectfully,

ERNEST A. HAAS,
704 South Fourth street.

"The Tourists."

St. Louis, September 19, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

An article appeared in one of the papers of yesterday morning in which it was stated that the "hint" of Mestayer's "Tourists," now being performed at the Grand, was taken from "Le Voyage en Suisse," now being shown by the Hanlons at the Olympic. I beg leave to differ in this. The conception was formed by Mr. Wm. Mestayer some years ago while in 'Frisco, with the intention of producing a burlesque on the sleeping-car system, in which Miss Alice Harrison and himself were to star. This fell through, and two or three years elapsed before it was carried out in some other form. The idea, I am positive, was original with Mr. Mestayer, and I do not believe he ever had seen or heard of the work from which the Hanlons' play was concocted. At any rate, the two plays are anything but similar. Respectfully,

A. S. PENNOYER,
Acting Manager Mestayer's "Tourists."

Philately Vindicated.

St. Louis, September 19, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In answer to "Grandmother's" philatelic conundrum in yesterday's paper I will say that the collecting of postage stamps is the most intellectual and agreeable pursuit of the day, and is engaged in by both old and young, rich and poor, prince and peasant. There are thousands of collectors in the United States, while amateurs are to be found in every city, town and village in the world. It teaches geography and history. It develops a taste for art and science, and stimulates research in nearly every branch of learning.

Authors Wanted.

St. Louis, September 19, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please tell me the author and from what work the quotation comes, "A man never speaks of himself without great loss. A man's accusations of himself are always believed; his praises never. It takes a soul to move a body; it takes a high-souled man to move the masses." VIOLA.

[Perhaps some of our readers can oblige Viola.—Editor Post-Dispatch.]

Others Have Resigned.

St. Louis, September 18, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I do not see how all our newspapers are boring Dan Kerwin about his resignation and making such a nine-days' wonder of it? He is not the first gentleman that has stepped down and out because they found out they could not be a Police Commissioner and be honest. Yours, PLUTO.

Criticizing the V. P.

St. Louis, September 18, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I cannot see any "good luck" in the "mule shoe" as shown in float 13 in the official book. A mule shoe is significant of an unceremonious kick which is not considered very lucky by those who receive an impression from the kicker. Mr. V. P. artist must be an ass. CRITIC.

Is Gould a Jew?

Kirksville, Mo., September 17, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

To settle a dispute, please state whether or not the famed Mr. J. Gould is a Jew. SUBSCRIBER.

[We do not know of any authoritative biography of Gould. The assertion of his Jewish origin is made and denied.—Editor Post-Dispatch.]

Blair's Danger.

From the Chicago Times.

Probably Mr. Blair is in no bodily danger; the lunatics who have thus far appeared before his committee have been of a harmless character, but in order to be on the safe side he should insist that no more witnesses shall be heard unless they are accompanied by their keepers.

Death from a Moccasin Wound.

From the Florida Union.

At Clearwater Harbor last week the wife of Rev. C. S. Reynolds, at 1 o'clock a. m., heard her chickens making an unusual noise. She went out into the yard to the chicken-coop, and, putting her hand into it, was bitten by a moccasin snake, from the effects of which she died.

Wants to See the Old Man.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

It has been discovered that Mrs. Langtry has $81,000 worth of mortgages in New York. Rather a neat pile for one season's profits. That can't be what Freddy Gebhardt is after, though. It is intimated that Freddy has crossed the sea. Probably he wants to see Mr. Langtry.

Vest and the Indians.

From the Chicago Times.

Before Senator Vest dispossesses the unfortunate Flatheads and Nez Perces of the remnant of their lands he ought, in order to give them a chance to make a living, instruct them in the noble science of draw poker.

A Two-Ton Devil-Fish.

From the Charleston News and Courier.

A very large devil-fish was caught at Port Royal on Sunday. It measured sixteen feet across and is reported to have weighed two tons.

FRACAS WITH A CAR DRIVER.

A Very Lively Scene on a Street Car This Morning.

About 8 o'clock this morning Mr. W. G. Ellet, a traveling salesman for the Heideman-Benoist Saddlery Company, had an altercation and set-to with the driver of car No. 21, of the Mound City Railway. The facts of the case, as stated by Mr. Ellet, are as follows: "At the corner of St. Louis avenue and West Eighteenth street a lady, whose name I do not know, entered the car and took a seat next to me. She handed me a dime which I passed to the driver. He told me to put it in the box. I said I wanted change. Again he told me to put it in the box. I then handed it back to the lady telling her the driver refused to give me change. He then came into the car and demanded the dime of the lady. I told her to hold it until he offered her the change, as he was not allowed by the rules of the company to receive of deposit fare, and that I would protect her. He then put his hand in his pocket and produced two nickels, took her dime, gave her one nickel and put the other in the box himself. When he got on the platform again he began to blackguard me, saying I was a 'damned beat' and that I owed him a fare. At first I paid no attention to him, but as he continued it, and every moment became more and more offensive, I stepped out on the platform and told him to stop it. This only made him worse, and he became so abusive that I struck him. He immediately struck back and hit me here near the right eye. I then struck him on the side of the head and jammed his head through the front window of the car. By this time the ladies in the car were very much alarmed, and pleaded with me to stop. I immediately begged their pardon for being compelled to fight in their presence, and entering the car took my seat. The driver then got off the car and, picking up a large paving stone, entered by the rear, and told me if I did not get off he would 'mash my damn brains out.' I told the ladies in deference to them I would leave the car, and then I informed the driver that I would go and report him to the superintendent. I alighted from the car and took the very next one going west. At the stables I reported the matter to the superintendent, but he gave me very little satisfaction."

THE PHŒNIX PLANING MILL.

Total Destruction of the Building by Fire—The Loss and Insurance.

Shortly before 7 o'clock last night the Phœnix Planing Mill, located on the northwest corner of Twelfth and Spruce streets, was discovered to be on fire. Chief of Police Campbell, who was sitting in his office at the time, was the first to notice the flames. He ran over to the mill and attempted to unravel the hose, but the hose was so surrounded by lumber that he found it impossible to unreel it. He insists that had the reel been in proper condition he could have extinguished the fire at its inception. The fire started in the drying-room, an apartment used for seasoning lumber, and spread with great rapidity to other points of the building. By the time the engines arrived, which was very soon after the flames were first observed, the entire structure was ablaze. To extinguish the flames was an utter impossibility, and therefore the firemen turned their attention to saving the adjoining buildings from destruction. In their efforts they were entirely successful, for although several small houses in the neighborhood took fire from the blazing embers they were extinguished without difficulty, and the damage thus inflicted was trifling. A long row of tenement houses west of the mill escaped entirely. Mr. George Breckenridge, the proprietor of the mill, was among the earliest arrivals at the scene of the conflagration. He estimates his loss at $80,000. The total insurance is $51,000, placed in various companies. He will commence rebuilding at once. The fire of yesterday was the second which has leveled the Phœnix Mill to the ground. The first took place on November 2, 1881. The total loss at that time was $55,000; insurance, $26,000. The original building was considerably smaller than the one which replaced it. Mr. Breckenridge became the proprietor of the mill in 1866, having purchased it from Mr. John Bent, who built it in 1858.

The fire companies which did excellent service yesterday are the 13s, 15s, 16s, 12s, 10s and 6s. By their exertions the brick dwelling house fronting on Spruce street and belonging to the mill owner, which was in imminent danger of total destruction, escaped with the loss only of the side porches.

RARE AUTOGRAPHS.

The Interesting Collection of Dr. A. De Bausset.

Dr. A. De Bausset, living at No. 206 South Fourth street, has in his possession some rare old autograph letters which the Historical Society or some one of our public libraries should endeavor to procure. One of them is a letter of Washington's dated at Newburg, the 8th of December, 1782. It was written for Major Du Bouchet when he was about to return to France in 1783, at the close of the Revolutionary War. It is an open letter of commendation, in which he pays tribute to the valor, zeal and integrity of Major Du Bouchet while he was in the American army under General Gates' command.

On the reverse side of the paper upon which this letter is writen is one of Gen. Gates' in which he indorses what has been written by Washington. The date of the letter is the same, but Gates' was written at New Windsor instead of at Newburg. The paper on which they are written was evidently of French manufacture, as it contains a water mark of the fleur de lys of France. Another is a letter from Lafayette to Du Bouchet, dated at White Marsh just before Du Bouchet's departure, telling him that he had no special commissions for him to perform in France, and that Washington and Gates would give him any letters of introduction that he might need. Dr. De Bausset also has a military order issued by Comte Rochambeau to Major Du Bouchet, during our Revolutionary War. The Doctor considers this the most valuable of all his documents. It was issued in 1782, when Dr. Bouchet was commander under Rochambeau of the French forces in America. The paper is sealed with the coat of arms of the Rochambeau family, on which are inscribed two mottoes, one in French and one in Latin—"Vivie ou Preux et Mourir," and "Bellicial Virtutis praemium." There is no doubt of the genuineness of all these documents, and the Doctor would be glad to show them to any one who takes an interest in such matters.

A DOG'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Manager Norton's Setter "Nep" Reported Mysteriously Missing.

"Nep," the deaf old setter, whose brown and white coat was familiar to all visitors at the Grand Opera House, is lost, and his owner, Manager John W. Norton, is disconsolate. It is hardly probable that anybody but Mr. Norton would take care of the dog. He is aged and decrepit, must be addressed by signs, and requires considerable attention before his comforts can be considered as supplied. He is dear to his owner, however, not on account of his intrinsic value in the animal line, but because he was a gift from the late Charles Thorne, who brought him from California six years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Norton were both fond of the poor deaf creature, which made his home in the offices around the Grand, sleeping on a rug under his master's desk or wandering in and out of Geo. McManus's quarters, patted and petted by every business manager and actor with whom he came in contact. "Nep" has been on the stage. He made his first appearance here some years ago in an unimportant dog part, and it was not until the beginning of last season that his talents in the dramatic line asserted themselves. When Mr. and Mrs. Norton went to New York to create the principal roles in "The Romany Rye" they took "Nep" with them. Jo. Brooks, the manager, had been looking everywhere for a canine performer, and "Nep" appeared in a most opportune moment. He went on and, as the boys say, made a big hit. Old and deaf, moving about the stage, as Mrs. Norton directed by her gesture, he did all that was required of him so exceedingly well that high-toned New York audiences, when they honored the actors with a call before the curtain always insisted on "Nep's" coming forward and receiving his share of the ovation. The dog remained in "The Romany Rye" company several months, and got quite accustomed to the footlights and the public. Lately he has been generously provided for at the Opera House. He disappeared about a week ago. Mr. Norton will no doubt handsomely reward any one who brings him back.

The Veiled Prophets' Invitations.

The invitations to the Veiled Prophets' grand ball are out and freely circulating to-day. The design is an oblong envelope with folding edges which frame in an etching representing the Prophet seated in a fairy world with all sorts of queer characters of the earth, air and sky moving around him. The interior of the envelope has a golden spider web imprinted on its surface with an immense insect in the centre. The exterior has a border of steel gray with the inscription

"Through this house each fairy stray
Trip away! Trip away
Now until the break of day," running around it. In the centre is an illustration in illuminated colors, resembling a memorial window. Flowers and figures of curious design fill in the spaces, and the middle of the picture is a huge web, upon which winged fairies are lightly dancing. The admission ticket is a long strip of pasteboard in white, green and gold, with a coupon attached, which entitles the holder to a programme.

SPORTING NEWS.

The Metropolitans Lose the Last Game —Racing—Gossip.

St. Louis won the last game of the series from the Metropolitans of New York yesterday, in a very exciting game which belonged to either side until the last man was out. The final score was 3 to 2, in favor of St. Louis. In the Mets' half of the ninth inning Orr got around to third base, with only one man out, one run to tie, and Holbert, the hard-hitter, at the bat. Orr was ordered to run in on any chance. When Holbert struck at the ball the third time he missed it, and Deasley, who held it, dashed it down to third and caught Orr. Base hits, 5 each. Errors: St. Louis 2, Mets 6. Runs earned: Mets 1.

The Cincinnati champions and the Athletics had a hard scuffle at Cincinnati yesterday, the Athletics winning by a score of 13 to 12 in ten innings. White's error gave the Athletics the winning run. Cincinnati made eight runs in the eighth inning. Matthews and White were the pitchers. Base hits: Athletics 13, Cincinnati 15. Errors: Athletics 9, Cincinnati 8. Runs earned: Cincinnati 6, Athletic 5.

The following League games were played yesterday: At Boston—Boston 11, Detroit 5. At Philadelphia—Buffalo 4, Philadelphia 0. At Providence—Chicago 5, Providence 1. At New York—Cleveland 9, New York 1.

At Indianapolis, O'Leary's sluggers defeated the Louisville Eclipse by a score of 7 to 2.

The following games of the Northwestern League were played yesterday: At Springfield, Ill.—Springfield 8, Toledo 7. At Quincy, Ill.—Quincy 8, Saginaw 7. At Peoria, Ill.—Peoria 9, Bay City 6.

RACING.

The results at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, were as follows: The first race, three-quarter mile, all ages, was won by Princess; Weasal second, Hickory Jim third. Time, 1:19¼. Second race, one mile—Breeze first, Brad second, Vibrator third. Time, 1:47. Third race, one mile and three-eighths—Referee first, Euclid second, All-Hands-Around third. Time, 2:31. Fourth race, two miles—Aella first, Amazon second, General Monroe third. Time, 3:41¼. Fifth race, mile and one-fourth—Edwin A. first, Helen Wallace second, Heel-and-Toe third. Time, 2:15¼. French pools paid $128. Sixth race, steeple-chase, short course—Abraham first, Bridecake second, Charlie Epps third. Time, 5:08.

At Covington, Ky., the first race, one and a quarter miles, resulted in a dead heat between Centerville and Short, in 2:10¼. The Tobacco stakes, mile heats, was won by Wallflower, Chatter second, Tennis third. Time for the first heat 1:45¾, second heat 1:46¾. Lelex won the one and one-eighth miles in 1:58¼. Lizzie S. won the mile race in 1:43¼.

At Mystic Park, Boston, Richball won the pacing race and Modoc the 2:26 trot.

Laycock, the Australian, has broken his leg, so that the match with Hanlan is off.

The Athletics will arrive to-morrow morning, and will play here on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The St. Louis Junior Four, Frank A. Merkle, bow; William Surbled, jr., 2d bow; William Eveson, 2d stroke, and Arthur Eveson, stroke, are training hard for the coming race with the champion crew of the Westerns, which takes place Sunday, September 30, at 4 o'clock p. m. Although the Westerns have advantage in boats, the pony team of the St. Louis club will give them a good shake.

The billiard tournament closed at St. Joseph last night. Sexton's badges were stolen during the night, and a fight resulted in which Sexton came out winner.

NORTH ST. LOUIS.

Mr. F. W. Imsiepen, Constable of the Tenth District, left this morning for Washington City.

Mr. Charles Gruner, of the Gruner Bros. Lumber Company, is recovering from a serious attack of malaria.

Wm. H. Pratt, an employe of the Hydraulic Pressed Brick Works had a finger amputated and his right hand mashed in one of the machines.

Several millions of feet of soft pine lumber for the North St. Louis yard is deterred by sand banks between here and the mouth of the Cheppewa River.

Officer Andrew Hatch, who has been ill for several days, reported for duty this morning. This is the second time this officer has been confined to his bed since his connection with the force, 35 years.

The police arrested John T. Brennan, a young man about 24 years of age. Miss Inez Treacy, residing at 1323 North Twenty-first street, alleges that Brennan seduced her on the 15th of last February, under promise of marriage.

The remains of the late Francis M. Page arrived this morning from St. Paul, Minn., and were interred this afternoon in Bellefontaine Cemetery. The funeral took place from the residence of Samuel Gaty, No. 3408 North Ninth street. The deceased was well known, and died at St. Paul on the 13th inst. of typhoid fever.

Yesterday afternoon the stockholders of the Laclede Rolling Mills, Second and Ferry streets, held their twenty-fifth annual meeting. The only business was the election of directors, which resulted as follows: Edwin Harrison, Chas. C. Maffitt and Chas. P. Chouteau were re-elected. Mr. Harrison not desiring to serve another term as president, Mr. Maffitt was elected to the position. Mr. Paul Fusz was re-elected secretary.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

The evening meetings at the Carondelet Baptist Church are increasing in interest.

Mr. Willmsen, of the firm of Willmsen & Hecker, has returned from the East, and their new goods will be placed in their new store.

P. M. Barney will hereafter be more careful in regard to the locality of his bed. Last night in turning over he turned out of a second story window to the pavement, which seemed to be worse used up than did the man, as he had no bones broken though suffering from the shock.

O'Conner's was the scene last night of a general fight, ending this morning with four cases in the Police Court, or rather one case in four parts, Messrs. Reynolds, Lewis, Sullivan and Murphy being mixed up in the affray, and all tried together. There were several pairs of black eyes and bruised cheeks, but the Judge was merciful, as all were evidently a good deal punished already. Murphy only was fined $5, which was stayed on payment of costs, and the parties left as good friends as ever.

LINCOLN OR BUTLER.

The Choice of the Colored Men for President.

Interview with Fred Douglass at Washington—The Coming Colored Convention.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, September 13.—"Ben has the gravel train, and it will stick by him. He may not have the limited express, but he has the gravel train, and I don't think he can be beaten; for in elections numbers count, not the quality of the voters."

It was Fred Douglass, the venerable ex-slave and champion of the colored man who said this, and it was of Ben Butler of Massachusetts that he spoke. He sat in the library of his pretty tasteful home, surrounded by his books and pictures and literary gatherings of half a century, as he spoke. From the windows of his parlor, he looked down upon the beautiful capital city, spread out at the foot of the hill on the crest of which his house stands. Near by flowed the blue Potomac and on its placid bosom floated grim gunboats, lying idly at the navy yard hard within range of easy vision. The broad grounds in front, tastefully laid out and decorated sloped rapidly away from the ample piazza which ran across the entire front of the tasteful and substantial brick mansion. Inside, a broad hall, richly carpeted and furnished, spoke the taste and wealth of the owner—for Fred. Douglass is one of the numerous wealthy colored men of Washington—and that of the other rooms was in keeping.

THE HOME

was comfortable and elegant, one to which most anybody might be willing to invite his friends, yet not in any manner out of taste, or liable to excite remark as beyond the means or station of the ex-slave, as he delights to call himself. Upon the walls of the parlor were portraits of Lincoln, Sumner, Langston and others, and from those of the study, where he eats, hung in plain frames another of Lincoln, photographic groups entitled "Friends of Freedom," pictures of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and several very dark complexioned gentlemen of more or less repute, while just beside his table stood a life-sized bust, in tinted plaster, of himself. The table at which he sat was strewn with books and papers, and a cushioned stool close at the front showed that he had been at work when the bell brought him to the door in person. His long white hair, which began to turn gray at 20, he says, is now as white as the driven snow, but his full beard, which he strokes and caresses as he talks, is still as nearly black as gray. In figure he is still straight as an arrow, and but for his white hair none need suppose him to be 50, instead of nearly or quite 70 as he really is. He was talking of the coming convention, of the political and social condition of the colored race; of the Presidential preferences of the colored voter, and of the relations of the present Administration to the negro class and

THE COMING CONVENTION AT LOUISVILLE.

"I don't think," he said in answer to a question, "that the convention is going to indorse President Arthur or make any nomination for President or Vice-President. There has been talk that it was called in the interest of the present administration. If that is so I do not know it. I do not think it is so at all. It is a mistake, too, to suppose that I was the caller or originator of the convention. I was not, in any sense. There was a meeting of colored delegates held here, chosen by the colored people of the district, to arrange a programme for the celebration of Emancipation Day in the district. After they had finished this task they concluded to call a convention of the colored people to discuss the questions now especially of interest to us. I had nothing to do with the origin of the convention, and knew nothing of it until I found myself placed on the committee to make the call, and then I could not do otherwise than take hold and help the best I could, but as to the President having anything to do with it, or as to its being likely to indorse or boom him, I know nothing, and I do not think there is any truth in it."

"Do not the colored people think kindly of the President, Mr. Douglass?"

"Oh, yes, but I don't think the convention will nominate anybody, either for President or Vice President. It may say, and probably will, that the colored people ought to have a more liberal share in the distribution of offices, and may go so far as to demand a colored Cabinet officer, but even that is of doubtful propriety in my mind. As to President Arthur, we certainly have no cause to complain of him. He has not done very much for us, it is true, but he has done nothing against us, and his Cabinet officers have done very well by the colored man. Still I think that if the convention does anything in the way of nominating or indorsing anybody, or in any way expressing its preference, it will be for another man."

"What is his name?"

"Robert T. Lincoln. I think he has the heart of the colored people more than any man now before the country in any position. The colored man holds the name of Lincoln in reverence, as he ought, and his son, has made a good Cabinet officer and his name at the head of a national ticket would rally almost every colored man to its support. There is only one name on the other side that would have any such effect."

ROBERT LINCOLN,

"And what one is that?"

"Ben Butler. He stands very well with the colored people of the South, very well, indeed. The name of Butler at the head of the Democratic ticket, or at the head of any ticket, indeed, would make it very strong with the colored vote of the South. He was the hero of New Orleans, the inventor of the term 'Contraband of War,' as applied to the negro and slave, and his course toward the colored man since the war has been such as to continue his good opinion of him. Butler on the Democratic ticket would make a very considerable percentage of the colored vote of the South Democratic, at least for the time."

So much so that the South would be solidly Democratic beyond a peradventure, eh?"

"Yes, undoubtedly. And if Butler is re-elected it will give him a boom for the Presidency, sure.

MASSACHUSETTS,

at least one Massachusetts, is struggling to rid herself of him, but I doubt if she will be able to do so. He has the gravel train with him, and it will stay, too. He may not have the limited express, but he has the gravel train, and I don't think he can be beaten."

"What will be the class of colored men composing the convention? It is spoken of by some as likely to be a bummer convention."

"There seems no good reason for that charge. It is true that those who have been prominent in politics are holding aloof from it, or at least many of them, but it seems to me more likely to be representative in its nature with this class omitted. I don't know why it is, but neither Pinchback, nor Bruce, nor Lynch, nor Langston nor any of those who have been prominent as colored political leaders are taking an interest in this convention. I am a little sorry to see it attacked by those who ought to have the interests of its race at heart and who ought to know better than to make the sort of charges they are making. But we shall see what the convention does and then judge of it."

"What will be its general course, do you think, Mr. Douglass?"

"I presume it will demand a more thorough enforcement of the laws which now exist rather than the enactment of any new ones, a fair and free ballot, a better show in the jury-box at the South, better wages for workmen, a better and more thorough educational system, and a more equitable distribution of the offices. In short, it will probably be a growl, and a demand for more. There is trouble in our kitchen," he laughed, "and Oliver wants more."

I. D. MULLER, St. Louis, Mo., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters gives perfect satisfaction to my customers."

THE LOUNGER.

AN economical friend of mine asked me one day if I had ever taken lunch at such and such an eating-house, which I recognized as a five cent establishment. When I said that I had never had the pleasure, he said try it, ask for bean soup or something of that kind. So I dropped into it one day for curiosity's sake. There was a lunch counter crowded with patrons and a few tables and chairs in the room. Everything was neat and clean in appearance, including the polite waiter, who stepped up and asked my order. The bill of fare, which was in the aforesaid waiter's head, consisted of two kinds of soup and several meats, hashes, sausages and pies. I tried the soup and found it thin, but good in flavor, and the other things were excellent for the price, and were at least eatable. The highest price charged for one dish was five cents. The things were served nicely, and it is really remarkable that any profit can be made in the business.

I SAW in the restaurant several elegantly dressed young men on whose faultless shapes I had feasted my eyes in times past, and imagined them wealthy scions of some of the first families. They belonged to that large class of people who put all their cash on their backs for show, and live on the remnants. This kind of young man lunches at a cheap place or at a free lunch counter, buys a cigar for more than his lunch cost him, picks his teeth at a first-class hotel and is ready to mash the first susceptible member of the opposite sex who passes his way and gets a glimpse of him in all his glory.

NO ONE who has occasion to walk the streets much or to visit the hotels can have failed to notice the great increase in the number of strangers in the city, most of them apparently from the country. They are the advance columns of the grand army that is expected to invade the town during Fair Week. I have met them everywhere; in the hotels apparently lost in the busy throngs; on the streets gazing at the shop windows and buildings; in the street cars and parks, their character and kind as plainly marked by peculiar ways and costumes as if labels were hung on their backs. It is hard to tell which are the most amusing—the old couples or the young couples. The former are amusing by reason of the fear of both that they may go wrong and the endeavor of both to act as guide-in-chief and the director of each other, and the latter by the implicit faith and confidence of the fairer member in her escort and the unmistakable delight and wonder of both at their experiences, seemingly unconscious of the rest of the world and of the dangers from vehicles, fire, thugs, thieves, or anything else. I noticed several such at the Lafayette Park concert, arm in arm, deeply absorbed in their own enjoyment, the outward but unconscious observed of all observers.

I RODE down in an Olive street car with a comical pair a night or two ago. The first intimation that I had of their presence was a command from the driver to go to the other crossing, followed by a reproachful female voice, which exclaimed, "Why, John, don't you know we can't get in on this side of the street." Then there was a race across the street and the couple tumbled in blown and hurried. One was a chunky, rather sour-looking old lady, and the other a slender, nervous, talkative old gentleman. The female flopped down on the seat at once, but the old gentleman didn't want to miss anything. He hurried to the front platform and insisted on paying the driver the fare, and as he wouldn't take it he handed the dime to his companion saying, "Here, you take this," which was, I suppose, an acknowledgement of her superior wisdom. Then he went out on the front platform to see the sights, night as it was, and was only saved from breaking his neck through ignorance of the fact that there was a step on the platform, by the efforts of the driver. When the conductor naturally applied to him for the fare the old gentleman thought he had come to talk to him and commenced plying him with questions until the frantic waving of the dime by the old lady attracted the conductor's attention, and the fare was paid. When we reached Sixth street the old gentlemen asked his wife whether she wanted to take a long ride or not, and inquired of me where the Hotel Barnum was. I pointed down the street we were passing and then there was a rush. The old lady was nearly killed by being hurried off before the car was stopped, and the old gentleman saved himself from a fall by an agile acrobatic feat. They probably reached the hotel in safety.

THE country merchant looks forward to the time when he comes to town as a glorious occasion, and it is little wonder, for one has only to see the hordes of drummers awaiting his arrival to recognize his importance. His reception is of the warmest kind. He is hugged, treated, feted, entreated and worried from the time of his entrance to his exit. Every strategy is made use of to secure his custom, and one would think from the caressing ways and endearing terms with which he is overwhelmed that he was the favorite of a large circle of intimate friends. On the other hand, the merchant, if he likes fun, expects his commercial friends to devote considerable time and money for his especial benefit, showing him the town, without a thought that there are hundreds like him, with the same claims on the firm, and that such devotion to customers would bankrupt the wealthiest house in the country. There is always a smiling face when he is around, however, whatever there may be when he is away. Economy is generally considered in the treatment of the purchasers, but it is carried a long way when a drummer treats his friends and don't take anything himself, as I saw one do the other day.

I HAVE heard it generally predicted that there will be more strangers in the city this Fair week than ever before, and I believe the prediction will be verified. There is more on the programme this year than ever before. Not a night will be allowed to pass without an attractive display of some kind—fireworks or procession—and the additional hop at the Armory and the tableaux and concert at the theater will be drawing features. The pilgrimage to the city is as large at this time as it has been for years, many of the hotels being already full to overflowing, and some of them being compelled to resort to cots to accommodate the traveling public.

A PROMINENT member of the Merchants' Exchange, whom his friends call Bob, is extremely absent-minded at times. He was deeply absorbed in a transaction the other day and was walking the floor in consultation with himself, when he approached the water cooler, drew off a full glass and shot it down his throat with a satisfied smack of his lips. Then he pulled out a dime and deposited it on the stand. He was not a little surprised to have the dime returned to him by an amused witness of the scene. Evidently Bob doesn't consult the water cooler often.

THE APOLOGY.

Think me not unkind and rude
  That I walk alone in grove and glen;
I go to the god of the wood
  To fetch his word to men.

Tax not my sloth that I
  Fold my arms beside the brook;
Each cloud that floated in the sky
  Writes a letter in my book.

Chide me not, laborious band,
  For the idle flowers I brought;
Every aster in my hand
  Goes home loaded with a thought.

There was never mystery
  But 'tis figured in the flowers;
Was never secret history
  But birds tell it in the bowers.

One harvest from thy field
  Homeward brought the oxen strong;
A second crop thine acres yield,
  Which I gather in a song.

EMERSON.

ALIVE IN A DEEP PIT.

About a Lad Who, Like Truth, Was Found at the Bottom of a Well.

From the Detroit News.

During the last few weeks James Wilson, who lives near Thamesville, has been endeavoring to procure water on his place, and for that purpose drilled at several points holes a foot in diameter and of various depths, filling each up before another was commenced, as soon as it was evident water would not come. The last one drilled was last week, when he sunk the drill fifty feet. Into this hole came some water, and after a time it filled half way up with water, and mud, the latter reduced to a soft consistency by the former. Thinking, perhaps, the desired effect might be reached, he decided to await further developments before filling this up and trying again. The family had a little two-year-old boy playing about in the go-as-you-please style common in country dooryards, but suddenly the baby was missed. Calling him and hunting for him proved futile, until the father thought of the hole twelve inches in diameter. As a last resort, without really thinking the child was there, he peered down the hole, but of course could see nothing. While doing so, however, he thought he heard the child's voice, and, after several moments of anxious listening, became satisfied that he was at the bottom, at least twenty-five feet below the surface, in a space of such small circumference that the possibility of rescue was a problem. The neighbors were appealed to for suggestions. Among others it was proposed to dig down to the little one, but it would take two or three days, said one, and the child might die meantime, while another called attention to the prospect of smothering or killing the child by clods falling upon him. Imagine the feelings of the parents while these and other plans were being discussed.

Finally a colored man came up and was informed of the catastrophe and dilemma. He requested the use of a mirror, and holding it above the hole gazed into it and saw the reflection of the child at the bottom. From the baby boy's position he had evidently stepped into the hole and with his clothing had filled it so full as to sink gradually, the air below offering resistance enough to prevent any injuriously swift descent. The colored man next asked for a rope, on the end of which he made a loop large enough to go over the child's head. Then he procured wooden strips, which he fastened strongly together until he had one strip twenty-five feet or more in length. He dropped the rope down the hole and lowered the wooden strip. While another person held the mirror above the colored man knelt by the opening, and taking his bearings by frequent observations in the mirror, worked faithfully to place the loop over the head of the little one down in the bowels of the earth.

Meantime a physician had been sent for that he might be at hand in case of need. Earnestly the colored man tried again and again to accomplish his purpose, each failure only making him the more determined to succeed, until at last he got the loop over the back of the child's head and around under his nose. The pressure against the nose caused the little one to throw its head back as far as possible, thus bringing the weight principally on the back of the head, and in this position he was pulled up to the surface. The doctor examined him and found him little the worse for his remarkable experience, and he was then returned to his overjoyed parents.

THE LOST VOYAGER.

Concerning the Leader of the Crew Now Locked Fast in a Prison of Ice.

Newburyport Dispatch in the Boston Journal.

The intelligence relating to the Lieutenant Greely Arctic expedition creates the most intense feeling here, this being the native place of Lieutenant Greely. His mother is at present at Jackson, N. H. His brother, John A. Greely, was called upon by the Journal representative this evening, and from him the following particulars are obtained. Lieutenant A. W. Greely was born in this city March 27, 1844, and entered the Nineteenth Massachusetts Regiment in August, 1861. He served throughout the entire war in the infantry, cavalry and artillery service, being engaged in twenty battles, and wounded at White Oak Swamp, Antietam and Fredericksburg. He was in New Orleans under Gen. Newman, and at the close of the war he was appointed a cadet from Louisiana by Gen. Grant, and entered the Sixth United States Cavalry, serving on the Southern frontier, and afterward was attached to the Signal Service and built the telegraph lines fifteen hundred miles in extent through the State of Texas. In 1881 he was appointed to take charge of the Signal Service expedition. His last visit was made here May 30, 1881, and the last intelligence from him was dated August 18, 1881, latitude 81.44 north, longitude 64.55 west, written in good health and spirits. He had killed enough musk-oxen to last his men for three months. His brother thinks he will make his way during the season to some of the caches which have been provisioned for his relief. While he is in condition to reach supplies, the failure of the relief expedition of 1882 to reach Lieutenant Greely was a great disappointment, and it was made a special request that the Proteus, Captain Pike, who took the party up in 1881, should be sent this year, and the disaster to the Proteus is regarded as very serious for the welfare of the brave men they were hoping to relieve.

Lieutenant Greely married in San Diego, Cal., Miss Henrietta Nesmith. She is now on her way to Washington, with her two daughters, to receive intelligence from the expeditions sent by this Government for the relief of her husband.

Catching a Deer with Fish Hooks.

From the Lake Superior Sentinel.

Will Hendrick, while out fishing one day last week, near the head of the bay, captured a 175 pound deer with large horns. The young dentist had no shooting iron with him at the time, but on seeing the animal enter the water he cautiously pulled his little row-boat between his buckship and the shore and drove him out into the bay, where, after a hard and long spell of rowing, he managed to catch him. He hooked into the deer's neck with a couple of fish hooks, and then with his fish line he managed to steady the boat until he could lasso it, which he did by throwing the boat's painter over its horns. The buck was not to be bagged so easily, however, for he turned upon his pursuer, and a lively tussle was had. An old buck will fight hard at such a time—if there is any one who has any doubt in the matter, let him ask Hendrick. At one time he struck the boat a blow with his fore feet which nearly capsized it. Will hung on to the rope like grim death, and by the dexterous use of an oar he finally knocked the buck out and brought him in.

HI JOLLY.

And the Camels Which He Brought Over From Asia Minor.

From the Tombstone (Arizona) Epitaph.

The Epitaph received a pleasant call yesterday from Philip Tedro, who is known throughout the territory as "Hi Jolly." As announced yesterday he has just returned from Sonora, where he was in the employ of the San Augustin Mining Company. A sketch of his career will not prove uninteresting. In 1856, when Pierce was President and Jeff Davis Secretary of War, through the Gadsden purchase the United States became possessed of what is now Arizona, embracing large desert tracts. As an experiment the Government concluded to purchase camels to be used as pack animals in traversing these vast wastes, and accordingly David D. Porter, afterward commodore, was commissioned to go abroad and make the purchase. At Smyrna, in Asia Minor, the Commodore met Hi Jolly, and through him bought seventy-six camels, and also engaged the services of Hi Jolly, who was then quite a young man. By a vessel the camels were shipped direct to Indianola, Texas, where they were landed the same year, thence across Texas to Albuquerque, where the animals arrived in fine condition, under charge of Hi Jolly. Here an expedition was being fitted out under command of Lieut. Ned Beale, and the camels were first brought into active service. The objective point was Ft. Tejon, Cal., and the route ran along the thirty-fifth parallel. The expedition consisted of forty-four citizens, with an escort of twenty soldiers, and the camels performed the packing, in some instances carrying as much as one hundred gallons of water to the animal, and going without a drop themselves for nine days at a time. They arrived safely at Tejon, then made the return trip to Albuquerque, then back to Tejon, all the time being under the charge of Hi Jolly. Tiring of the camels, the government condemned them and they were sold at Benecia to two Frenchmen, who took them to Reese River, where they were used in packing salt to Virginia City. Afterward the animals were brought back to Arizona, and for some time were engaged in packing ore from the Silver King to Yuma; but through some cause or other the Frenchmen became disgusted, there being no market for camels just then, and turned the camels loose upon the desert near Maricopa wells, and to-day they and their descendants are roaming through the Gila valley, increasing and multiplying and getting fat upon the succulent cacti and greasewood, with which that country abounds. Last summer two car-loads were captured by Maricopa Indians and sent East, where the market is said to be good for camels.

Hi Jolly settled down at Fort Tejon, and remained there until during the war, when he joined the California column and with it returned to Arizona, where he has resided ever since. Here he has principally been in the employ of the Government as interpreter, packer and scout, his last service being under Capt. Overton.

LUXURIES.

Only a Hair's Breadth Between Them and Abominations.

From the London Telegraph.

A really vicious-looking reptile is that very harmless and eminently edible monstrosity, the terrapin. Properly cooked—as they cook it, for instance, at Augustine's in Philadelphia or at the Club at Baltimore—it ranks among the most luxurious of luxuries. Some men, it is true, turn sick at the first taste of it, and refuse to face the dish again. Others worship it on the instant, and are fanatics for life. It is always so with very pronounced flavors. Thus, in India, to eat the "jack" fruit is to be held in abomination by your neighbors, but some men smuggle it into their premises, and, regardless of the fact that the astonishing odor of the huge fruit betrays them, make believe to eat it clandestinely. Others, however, know of his horrible infirmity, and, as if he were a cannibal given to the secret consumption of dreadful meats, tell each other that so-and-so "eats jack." Yet the fruit has a cousin, the dorian, exactly like it in taste, and Burmah goes mad over it when it is in season. Mandalay gives itself up body and soul to the luscious abomination. All official business is stopped. Trade puts on its shutters. The steamers will bring no other freight up the river but dorians. It is the formula of the season if a stranger wishes to see anyone who wishes not to be seen for the servant to reply: "Master is eating dorians." This is something more than the "not at home" of civilization. It is equivalent to "He is saying his prayers" of the Mohammedans. A man, while eating dorians, must not be disturbed. His privacy is sacred. So it is with other strong tastes. Some people will flee from musk as from a skunk. Yet half a continent delights in smearing itself with the perfume and eating it in food. However, to return to terrapin. Seen in all its natural hideous armature of native shell, and prickle, and wart, it would be flattering to the poor turtleish thing to say that its appearance was anything less than loathsome. Yet what miracle does art work more startling or more beneficent than this transmutation or concoction of an odious-looking reptile into a dish that men call "terrapin," and ought to call ambrosia? It has been a wonder from all time that any man should have attempted an oyster, "risking the living morsel down his throat," and succeeding ages have perpetuated the compliment to his courage. But what, then, shall we say of the dare-devil who first conceived the awful notion of eating terrapin? Turtle was ventursome enough; terrapin was positively reckless. Yet men have eaten, and do eat still, the portentous crocodile. It is said to have a slightly musky flavor, but to be "succulent."

A negro with a remarkable memory has been discovered at Little Rock. He was employed by a contractor to get out stones of a specified weight and weighed several car loads. THE AMERICAN FORESTS.

Only Thirty Years Before This Will Be a Treeless Country.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The wanton destruction of American forests gave to Professor Rothrock a theme that drew to Horticultural Hall, in the West Park, yesterday an audience that included the best-known horticulturists and scientific economists in the city. The old trees that tower above the hall showed here and there a glimpse of autumn red, but in the topmost branches the robins were straining their tiny throats with melody. The odor of the swaying pine and hemlock boughs seemed to bring to the lecturer nature's true afflatus. His statements, based on careful calculations of the decrease of timber land, year by year, were startling. "The necessity for curtailing forest destruction," said the professor, "involving as it does the growth and development or the absolute decay of our natural resources, is a question that presents an issue to the nation and the individual that cannot be disregarded." The lecturer placed the limit of American forests, at the present rate of consumption, at less than thirty years. Other horticulturists had decided that twenty years would see the country impoverished in its timber products. The nation could not learn too soon that, strictly speaking, America was not a woodland country. There were stretches extending from the Mississippi to California and from Texas to the Great lakes where forests were almost unknown. It is possible to travel from Maine to Texas through an almost treeless region. New Mexico, Utah and many more of the Territories are practically without local woodlands. The yearly consumption for fuel alone had reached stupendous proportions. William Little, of Montreal, calculated that in twelve months the saw mills of Canada converted into lumber and fuel an amount equal to the entire woodland of the States of Georgia and Alabama, and in six months the consumption was equal to the entire growth of Florida and the Carolinas. The consumption for fuel in the United States alone represented a sum equal to $3,000,000.

"The yearly destruction of forests in this country," continued the lecturer, "had reached an extent truly appalling in its magnitude. Twenty millions of acres is a low estimate of the destruction. These figures represent an area one-fourth the size of the British Isles, or as large as the entire State of Indiana. Two years ago the white pine growing in the United States covered 80,000,000 acres, a seemingly inexhaustible supply. But when it is remembered that of this area 10,000,000 acres are yearly converted into lumber, and that in less than six years the entire white pine product of the country will be exhausted, the crying necessity for an embargo on the terrible destruction of native woods can be readily understood."

NATURE OF A CYCLONE.

Characteristics of the Violent Storms That Have Been Frequent this Year.

—From the Popular Science Monthly.

All storms of any magnitude that visit the United States, except the tropical hurricanes which sometimes touch the Southern coasts, have a common origin in or near the Rocky Mountains. Here the first barometric depression is felt, preceded by a rising temperature caused by the warm winds moving northward over the sun-heated sands of Arizona, New Mexico and Western Texas. These warm, rarefied currents of air are met by cooler currents passing over the snow-clad peaks of the North: a cyclonic storm is formed, usually small at first, which begins its journey eastward, gradually developing in energy and area as it goes. After leaving the mountain ranges there is but little precipitation for the first few hundred miles. As it advances it usually widens from north to south, but the line of travel of the storm-center can be readily predicted by the Signal Service observers and its location at any time fixed by the lowest reported reading of the barometer.

During the journey of the storm eastward or southeastward the wind in advance of it will be easterly, blowing off an area of high barometer into the low, and the barometer will continue to fall. Toward the north of the storm the wind will be north, and to the south of it the wind will blow from the south, frequently causing what are known on the Western plains as "sand-storms," while if the storm occurs during the winter season the wind and snow in the northern portion is called a "blizzard." In the rear of the storm the wind will be westerly, shifting to northwest, frequently blowing a gale, the barometer will rise and the temperature will fall, sometimes rapidly, and clearing weather will follow.

Thus it will be observed that the true axis is the "storm-centre," and that the storm revolves on this axis as it moves forward in an easterly, northeasterly or southeasterly direction. This is the true cyclone. It may be only a few hundred miles in diameter, or its influence may be felt from British America to the Gulf of Mexico.

Carried For Luck.

From the Syracuse Herald.

Joseph Bloser of East Syracuse carries four old coins of rather curious history. When he was living at Manlius Station, in 1848, his sister turned up a half-penny, dated 1800, in the garden, on a spot where an old log cabin had formerly stood. He bought the half-penny of his sister for a penny and has carried it ever since in his trousers pocket. Five years afterward he turned up on the site of the old log cabin two more half-pennies, dated respectively 1805 and 1807. These coins he has also carried for the last thirty years. Five years ago, while digging by moonlight in his garden at North Manlius, where he had meantime moved, he brought to light an old penny of 1803. These four coins now keep company in his pocket, and Mr. Bloser says he would not part with them for anything.

Manager Gus Pennoyer Indulges in Reminiscences of the Early Days.

Mr. H. S. Pennoyer, who is business manager for "The Tourists," was sitting in the box-office of the Grand Opera House last night, counting up, when a POST-DISPATCH reporter wandered in and engaged the veteran in conversation.

"You may not know," said Mr. Pennoyer, "but I am a sort of an old-timer in St. Louis. I was property boy in this theater when Joe Field, who came here from Memphis, opened it in '53. I'll never forget the opening night. Everybody had kept on saying right along that we couldn't open on the date designated. The building was in such an unfinished condition that everybody except Field looked upon it as a hopeless case. 'There is no use' they would say, 'you can't open.' But open we did, and with a farce written for the occasion by Field, and entitled 'Can't Open.' There was a large and brilliant audience, and stage carpenters and all of us were on in the farce, which took very well. Field made an opening speech in which among other things he said he had built his theater for the elite and hoped to receive their patronage and all that. Well, that speech killed the theater. Field stopped here a season or two, but he dropped his socks, and I attribute his whole misfortune to his rash utterances in that speech about the elite.

"Tom Noxon used to be a boy running around here in those days. He mixed paint for Jim Laidlow, the scenic artist who was killed on account of Sallie Sinclair. You want to hear the story? Well, to make it as brief as possible, I must tell you that Sallie Sinclair was a handsome woman, very popular with the boys. Laidlow and she were, I imagine, in love with each other. Anyhow, it looked that way, for Jim was always with her. Well, pretty soon a jeweler named McDonald got stuck on her. He was so badly gone that when he found Laidlow in his way he hired a man about town—a sort of steamboat runner or something of that kind—to kill him. Jackson knew Laidlow, invited him out for a ride one day and when some distance from town shot him through the head. A milkman found Laidlow's body in the road next morning, his brains blown out. Jackson ran away to an uncle somewhere in the county, and, despite the fact that he always slept with a pistol under his head and a shot gun alongside of him, was captured and brought back to St. Louis, where he was tried and acquitted on the ground of emotional insanity. It developed in the testimony, however, that McDonald had offered $500 for the killing of Laidlow. Jackson is now at Perth-Amboy, owns a big hotel, is worth $400,000 or $500,000, belongs to the church and is a prominent and respected citizen of the place. Tom Noxon, who was then a paint boy, is now your well-known scenic artist.

"Oh yes," said Mr. Pennoyer, "I may be said to belong to the olden times. I remember when I worked for Laidlow and Smith when they had the People's Theater on the Post Office corner. Mrs. Farren was leading lady in the company at that time at a salary of $15 a week, and I got 25 cents a week for carrying her basket to and from her boarding house. Since then Mrs. Farren has been a star, and a good one, and I have been her manager more than once, and we have paid her some very high salaries. She is a clever actress still, and her son, George Farren, is a first-class actor. It is funny, isn't it, the strange changes time brings?

"Talking about these olden days," Mr. Pennoyer went on, "I cannot help recalling the time when those two men," pointing to a picture in which the portraits of James Wallack and E. L. Davenport were to be seen, with the portraits of other illustrious dead of the stage, "I cannot help recalling the time when those two men, with a fine company, which included such actors as Placida, and a gifted woman like Lucille Western, were playing through the West, and afterwards went to Carew's Theater, Washington, D. C., where they remained for a season during the war. Wallack and Davenport were, as you know, remarkably fine actors, and both of them stars. I was their manager, and it was agreed with me that in billing them I should one day put Wallack's name first, and the next Davenport's, then Wallack's again, and so on. To-day it was "Wallack & Davenport's Combination;" to-morrow, "Davenport & Wallack's Combination." The first night we played in Washington I walked into their dressing-room and told them there was $800 in the house, and handed them the keys to the boxes, as is always the custom in such cases. What are these for?' asked Wallack. 'To count up,' I said. Wallack threw the keys back to me saying, 'Here, keep your keys and boxes to yourself. What do we know about counting up, and then what have we got you for anyway?' At the end of the week I made up my balances, gave them what was coming to them and nothing was said. They did not care for money. But I found out there was a smaller thing they did care for. One morning Wallack, dressed in the height of fashion as he always was, came into the office in a pretty bad humor and said, 'Now, Gus, my boy, that's not right. 'What's not right?' asked I, 'Why, see that bill: Davenport and Wallack's combination. Now you know this is my day, dear boy; that kind of thing isn't fair.' I made it plain to him that he was looking at the wrong bill and that in the printing for that day his name was ahead as it should be. He more than once was misled by old bills in this way. I only tell the story to show you how two great artists, who didn't care the snap of your finger for the money there was in the house, could kick up a big row about the position in which their names were placed in the printing. Funny, isn't it?"

THE FLOWER MISSION.

Floral Gifts of Womanly Charity—Carriages Loaned.

There was a large attendance of ladies at the Flower Mission this morning. The gathering autumnal days seemed to have but little effect on the cheerful spirits of the flower workers, who, in company with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will to-day visit the local jails with bouquets for the unfortunate. The trip to the jails was at first considered impracticable by the ladies of the Flower Mission, as their other work has increased considerably during the past month, and the work is rather out of their line. There were present this morning, Mesdames Barnard, Cartright, Smith, Coe, Cavan and Foster, the Misses Funk, Copp, Andre, Dix, Gardiner and others. There were 265 bouquets sent to the City Hospital this morning in addition to 113 magazines, and a quantity of grapes and lemons.

The following ladies donated flowers: Miss Fife, Miss Wilson of Ferguson Station, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Ittner, Mrs. Damon, Mrs. Tower. The Webster Groves Flower Mission gave seventy-two bouquets. Papers were donated by Mrs. Roth, Mrs. Hurst, Miss Funk and Mrs. Smith. Mrs. A. Allen gave a number of books. Mrs. C. C. Anderson, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Mitchell and Eddie Eames also gave papeas.

Veiled Prophets and "Iolanthe."

In the grand pageant of the Veiled Prophets the floats will be more gorgeous than in any previous year. No. 2, "A Scene in Fairyland," will probably present the most brilliant spectacle. No. 20 "Fairies of the Household," will not be less artistic and more practical. It will present a huge basket containing silk of various hues. Fairies will be knitting silk stockings of immense proportions, while fancy work in gay colors will be seen in profusion. The official programme illustrates this float admirably, and makes the following poetic application:

AMONG THE FAIRIES. [FROM "IOLANTHE."]

Queen—Loved her? What was your love to mine? Who taught me to curl myself inside a cocoon? Iolanthe! Who taught me to swing upon threads of Corticelli silk? Iolanthe! Who taught me to knit with the peerless Florence silk? Iolanthe!

Fleta—Oh, give her back to us, great Queen!—for your own sake if not for ours. [All kneel in supplication.]

Queen—I'll not be weak; I must be strong, for knitting in Fairy Land shall not decline. The silk is spun by mortals, but "Corticelli" is a friend to Iolanthe, and—well, well, it shall be as you wish.

METHODISTS' MEETING.

Annual Conference of Southern Illinois Methodists—Belleville News.

Mr. Diesel had two mules stolen from him last night at his residence near Centreville Station.

Mrs. Mitchel, an old resident, died last night at her residence on the Rock road, four miles from Belleville.

J. L. Jenkins of Maryland, brother of Mrs. Surratt, who was hanged for complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln, is in the city with his wife and son, stopping at the Hinckley House.

The Circuit Court will not meet before next Monday. The postponement is caused by the illness of Judge Watts.

The Grand Jury is in working order. It has found indictments against the Brooklyn car-thieves, and is engaged on the cases of the parties who are in jail.

The Grand Jury will not summon witnesses for the indictment of Torrence and Amis, who have converted the Livingston mansion on the island in East St. Louis into a gambling den.

The Sheriff and State's Attorney have received notice that gambling is to be extensively run in East St. Louis during the St. Louis Fair week, and will take measures which will interfere with them. They have been informed that the St. Louis gamblers are all offered protection by the city officials of East St. Louis, and that they can employ ropers-in and run a line of hacks over the bridge and dump their victims in the city. St. Clair County could much better afford a flood or a general miners' strike rather than be compromised by the city officials of East St. Louis, in introducing the gamblers of St. Louis into the county.

The Belleville Sewing Machine Company have deeded back to Mr. Ed West the five acres of ground which they had purchased for the erection of a new factory. They have also mortgaged their works to some of the stockholders. The managers have made arrangement to locate the factory at some other point. Hopes were indulged in that the works would be a permanent institution of Belleville, but some more progressive city has reached for it and caught it.

The Thirty-second Annual Conference of the M. E. Church is taking place to-day, all the cities of Southern Illinois being represented. About 200 ministers are in attendance. The five standing committees appointed yesterday are transacting the business assigned them. Rev. William Wallis, of Carlyle, delivered the sermon last night, which was listened to and enjoyed by a very large audience. To-day's programme was as follows: 9 a. m.—Conference session, Bishop Bowman presiding. 3 p. m.—Preaching. 7 p. m.—Freedmen's Aid and Ministerial Education Anniversaries, led by Rev. J. C. Hartzell of Cincinnati.

A LOT of German Loom Towels, very large size, for $1 75 a dozen, or 15c each; worth 25c.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

The City Council met last night, all the members except Mayor Winton and Councilmen Greer and O'Brien being present. The bids for the building of the new Police Station were opened and John Niemus' bid of $289,000 accepted. Mr. Niemus will be required to file a bond of $3,000 with the City Clerk to have the station finished November 15th, Minor business was transacted, after which the meeting adjourned. The members then held a private caucus, at which it was decided to discharge Officers Brennan, Hickey, White, Malloy and Mike Stack. These officers during the late strike among the members of the police force did not openly join the strikers, but reported too sick to work. Officers Guihan, Canty, McCarthy, Kane, Kinney and McManus were re-appointed to fill the vacancies. No action has yet been taken towards paying the police, but it is expected they will receive their back salary this week.

Conrad Aebisher, a passenger on the outgoing Chicago and Alton train, fell from the platform of one of the coaches at the Relay Depot last night, his right hand falling under the wheels being crushed to the wrist. Drs. Dwyer and Jennings amputated the hand at the wrist this morning.

The Miners' Union will hold a delegate meeting at Trauble's Hall to-morrow morning at which it is expected the operators of the district will attend and agree upon a price to be paid for mining coal during the winter months.

John Dillon was jailed last evening for being drunk and disorderly, but was discharged this morning on a promise of better behavior in future.

ASSESSOR POWERS' FUNERAL.

The Floral Tributes to the Deceased—The Large Crowd of Mourners.

The funeral of David R. Powers, President of the Board of Assessors, took place at 9 a. m. today from his residence, No. 320 South High street, to St. Malachi's Church. The impressive ceremonies were performed according to the rites of the Roman Catholic Church by the Rev. Father Zigler, After the ceremonies the crowd of mourners, headed by the hearse, moved slowly to the family lot, No. 25, in Section No. 7, of Calvary Cemetery. Among the floral offerings was a large and elegantly framed bank of white lilies, with the following affectionate inscription in purple immortelles: "Forom his D. P. Clerks." Another sweet remembrancer of the deceased friendship was a handsome wreath surrounding a cross, presented by his nieces. The word "Uncle" was lettered on the cross bar of the cross. A beautiful cross with a brilliant base of camellias was presented by his wife and occupied a position at the head of the metallic casket.

The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: Messrs. A. J. Smith, J. D. Finney, A. C. Hudson, Richard Howard, J. Frum, J. A. Nies and Adam Roth. Among the mourners were Clay Sexton, Commodore Smith, J. H. Pohlman, E. P. Daly, Gen. A. J. Smith, Sam Arnold, Theodore Hormann, Richard Mollencott, J. R. Bangs, J. W. Bosley, L. H. Jones, Peter Bowe, J. J. Bosley, William Hirt, W. H. Fox, William Sivers, William Hepner, L. J. Zwanziger, William Slicer, H. Newcome, Peter Madden, N. H. Clark, John Preswick, J. H. Martin, E. G. "NO ONE,"

Says his biographer, "understood better than Daniel Webster the PHILOSOPHY OF DRESS; and he was, undoubtedly, one of the grandest human figures that ever walked the earth." It is said that on great occasions Mr. Webster appeared in a blue cloth coat and buff vest—the Revolutionary colors of buff and blue—with white cravat. This courtly particularity of dress was most becoming to his face and expression, and greatly contributed to the influence of his elegant manner and grand appearance. That good-fitting and appropriate attire is a powerful auxiliary to one's success in life is too well known to be truthfully denied. It may seem vain to be philosophical for other people, but all those who have found it difficult to be fitted satisfactorily, either by their tailor or clothier, are respectfully requested to call at Grand CLOTHING HEADQUARTERS, which is (as thousands will cheerfully attest) at the northeast corner Pine and Broadway (formerly Fifth st.). You'll find upon our counters absolutely nothing but thoroughly Good, Honest and Fashionable Attire.

St. Louis, September 11, 1883.

IMPORTANT TO VOTERS.

Department of Election and Registration.

ROOM NO. 16, CITY HALL,
ST. LOUIS, September 11, 1883.

THE attention of voters is called to the fact that nearly all the house numbers and also many of the names of the streets of the city have been changed.

To avoid being stricken off the Poll Books by the Board of Revision, it will be absolutely necessary for each voter to call in person at the office of the Recorder of Voters, at the City Hall, bringing with him a memorandum of his new house number, and the new name of the street on which he resides, so the proper corrections may be made on the Registration Lists.

Voters who neglect this very important matter will in all probability have their names stricken from the Poll Books, as the Revisers will be compelled to take the new house numbers as their guide in canvassing their respective wards.

For the accommodation of those whose employment prevents from calling during the day, the office will be open until 10 o'clock p. m. for the next thirty days.

Recorder of Voters.

TRUSTEES' SALES.

WHEREAS Joseph Vincent, by his deed of trust, dated December 12, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 672, page 3, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-eight and thirty-nine in block one of the third subdivision of the St. Louis Common, made under ordinance 3126, approved February 3, 1854, said lots lying also in city block 1439, fronting fifty feet on the west line of Louisiana avenue by a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-five feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed of trust described; whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of
THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described property at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Samuel Sachs and Mary E. Sachs his wife, by their deed of trust, dated June 17, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the County of Dent, in the State of Missouri, in book B, at pages 454 and 455, did convey to Joseph T. Donovan, trustee, the following described real estate, situated in Dent County, State of Missouri, to-wit: All of lots two (2) and three (3) in block twenty-nine (29) on the west side of the creek in the town of Salem. Also all of the west half of southeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section fifteen, in township thirty-four, range eight west, and the northwest quarter of southwest quarter and northwest quarter of northeast quarter of section thirty-five (35) in township thirty-five (35), range 6 west, and all of the south half of northeast quarter in section twelve (12) in township thirty-three (33), range six (6), the "first tract" containing one hundred and twenty (120) acres "second tract" containing two hundred and forty (240) acres, third tract containing eighty acres, and two houses and lots, which conveyance was made to secure the payment of a certain promissory note therein described; and whereas default has been made in the payment thereof, and the same is wholly due and unpaid; now, therefore, by virtue of the provisions of said deed of trust and in pursuance of the power vested in me by the same, and at the request of the legal holder of said note, I, the undersigned, will, on MONDAY, THE 17TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, proceed to sell the property hereabove described at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, for cash, for the purposes of said trust.
JOSEPH T. DONOVAN, Trustee.

WHEREAS Harriet Baumgardner and Francis Baumgardner, her husband and trustee, by their deed of trust, dated the 21st day of June, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 653, at page 72, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate: Lot twenty, in block nine of Peter Lindell's first addition to said city, being in block 1952, fronting twenty-five feet on the north line of Laclede avenue by a depth northwardly of one hundred and twenty-eight feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed described. Whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of
THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described real estate at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House, in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.
This property was sold by me and the purchaser assumed the deed of trust. F. A. BAUMGARDNER.

WHEREAS, Edwin E. Anderson and Rebecca C. MONDAY, OCTOBER 8TH, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of that day, for the purpose of said trust.
JOSEPH T. DONOVAN, Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas the Rarus and Warrior Consolidated Mining Company, a corporation under the laws of Colorado, did on the 28th day of February, 1883, by its deed of trust of that date, recorded in book 28, page 422, of the records of Chaffee County, Colorado, convey to George Morris, as trustee the Rarus and Warrior Mining Claims, situated in Chalk Creek Mining District, on the west side of Pomeroy Mountain, and known as U. S. Mineral Surveys Nos. 1993 and 1994, together with all the appurtenances thereto belonging, and all property belonging to said company, to secure a note of same date, due six months thereafter, as fully set forth in said deed; and whereas default has been made in the payment of said note, and said George Morris, the trustee is absent from this State, and said deed provides that in case of said Morris' absence the (then) acting Sheriff of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, at the request of the legal holder of said note may proceed to sell the property described; Now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note, I, Isaac M. Mason, Sheriff of the City of St. Louis, and by virtue of my office acting trustee herein, will, on WEDNESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. of said day, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the property in said deed described, for the purpose of said trust.
ISAAC M. MASON,
Sheriff of City of St. Louis and Trustee.
St. Louis, September 17, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas, Samuel Robbins and Lucia M. Robbins, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 28th day of December, A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in Book 683 at page 418 of the Recorder of Deeds for the City of St. Louis, Missouri, conveyed to the undersigned Robert E. Collins the following described real estate situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Beginning at a point in the south line of Forest Park Boulevard where said south line is intersected by the east line of Lot No. forty-one (41) of Peter Lindell's second addition to the city of St. Louis, thence running southward with said east line of said Lot No. forty-one (41) to a point on said east line one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet eleven (11) inches north of the north line of Duncan (formerly Bates) avenue; thence westwardly one hundred feet to a point equally distant from the north line of Duncan (formerly Bates) avenue and the south line of Forest Park Boulevard; thence northwardly about one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet six (6) inches to the south line of Forest Park Boulevard; thence eastwardly with the south line of Forest Park Boulevard one hundred (100) feet to the place of beginning, said real estate therein conveyed being a parcel of block numbered thirty-nine hundred and four (3904) of said city of St. Louis, and having a front of one hundred (100) feet on the south side of Forest Park boulevard by an average depth of one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet eight and one-half (8½) inches more or less southwardly between parallel lines, the east line thereof being coincident with the east line of lot number forty-one (41) of Peter Lindell's second addition to the city of St. Louis, and the west line thereof being parallel with and distant four hundred and fourteen (414) feet eastwardly from Newstead, formerly Cornelia avenue, which conveyance was so made in trust to secure the payment of certain negotiable promissory notes in said deed of trust described, and whereas one of said notes has become due and now remains unpaid, and default has therefore been made in the payment of said notes; now, therefore the undersigned trustee, in pursuance and by authority of the provisions of said deed of trust, and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, will, on FRIDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, proceeds to sell said property at public sale to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purpose of said trust.

April Term, 1883.
Friday, April 27, 1883.
The State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of Nathaniel C. Hudson, Collector of the City of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, vs.
The Unknown Heirs of Fritz Temme.
No. 3,447.

Now at this day comes the plaintiff, by its attorney, and the plaintiff having filed its petition duly verified by affidavit, stating, among other things, that the unknown heirs of Fritz Temme are the owners of the real estate described in the petition, by descent as it verily believes, from one Fritz Temme, deceased, and that neither their names nor places of residence are known to plaintiff; wherefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorney,

It is ordered that said defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is to enforce the lien of the State of Missouri for the delinquent taxes of the years 1879 and 1881, amounting to the sum of sixty-one dollars and eighty-eight cents, together with interest and costs, against the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis, to-wit:

A lot of ground on Benton street, in city block 1,081, 32 feet in front or width and 111 feet in length or depth, being in block 30 in Union addition to said city, and bounded on the north by Benton street, on the east by real estate of one Kemper, on the south by an alley, on the west by real estate of one Hoffman.

And unless they appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of October next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis. Cause continued.

Peters, deceased, and presents to the court a petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said deceased as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate, and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case, on examination whereof,

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application as aforesaid has been made, and that, unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the said city of St. Louis, on the second Monday of September next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole, or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts.

And it is further ordered, that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St. Louis aforesaid, for four weeks before the next term of this court.

A true copy from the record.

Witness my hand and the seal of the Probate Court of the City of St Louis hereto affixed, this 25th day of July, 1883.
